Football Brings Husker Gridders Added Benefits

By LIANE GUENTHER and GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writers

Rumors about preferential treatment for University of Nebraska football players are as hard to tackle as fullback Tony Davis.

But gridders do have services and privileges which aren't available to most university students—and the NU Athletic Dept. usually picks up the tab.

Full scholarships for room, board, tuition, fees and books, free tutoring services, football tickets, entertainment, and help finding summer jobs are only a few of the advantages players and ex-players cited. And these benefits can add up to in excess of $5,000 per player per year.

Scalping football tickets, which is against university and National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rules, may be one of the most profitable aspects of being a football player.

'It Probably Goes On'

Coach Tom Osborne admits "it probably goes on" but said the athletic department "tries very hard" to enforce the NCAA rule. In years past there were no rules governing this, but now if caught, a player can lose his eligibility.

Each player gets two free season tickets plus one for each letter he has earned, to a maximum of four, and the option to buy four more.

The going scalpers' price is $20 to $30 per ticket per game, but several former and present players who didn't wish to be identified said athletes' tickets sometimes bring "much more."

NCAA Cracked Down

At one time players could accept free movie passes, but the NCAA has cracked down there, Osborne said.

The NU Athletic Department also pays the Nebraska Center regular "hotel rates"—$18 for doubles and $14 for singles—for the team and coaches who are required to stay there on Friday nights before home games.

The Star also investigated rumors that one player's girlfriend had her room, board and tuition paid by a wealthy fan, that players were given preferential treatment in the classroom, that some players mysteriously acquired expensive automobiles and that restaurant owners sometimes pick up the tab for team members. None of the rumors could be substantiated.

Owner Picks Up Tab

The owner of one local restaurant said he occasionally picks up the tab for football players he knows, just as he does for other regular customers and friends.

Several gridders said they were sometimes invited to social gatherings because they were on the team.

"We can't help who we are," was a common reaction.

But it's not all fun and games. Players aren't allowed to work during the school year like other students. Training is time consuming and team members are constantly under pressure and public scrutiny.

Financial Struggle

Jolene Valasek, wife of Cornhusker safety Larry Valasek, said it's a struggle financially with two children but they get along without her working.

"We take all the help we can get," she said, noting they live in low-income housing and use food stamps.

Most of the players find, or are placed, in summer jobs to help them through the school year.

Lt. Mike Eger of the Lincoln Police Department said six football players worked there last summer at $4.52 per hour. When asked how they were selected, Eger said, "the university sends over their names."

Firm Hires 10

The athletic department also has "contracts" with other prospective employers. An American Stores spokesman said the meat packing firm regularly hires as many as 10 players each summer. The hourly rate last summer was $5.54 and went to $5.69 after a union raise.

Adrian Fiala, a Nebraska player about five years ago, was one of those who worked lugging 140-pound carcasses into refrigerated trucks. "It hardens you up," he said.

As Fiala recalls, "special treatment" in the classroom was pretty much limited to "put downs" by a professor who didn't like athletes—at least no football players.

On the positive side, he mentioned eating at the training table. "The food was very, very good," he said.

4,000 To 5,000 Calories

Mrs. Cecilia Bona, head of the food service at Selleck, said athletes at the training table get 4,000 to 5,000 calories a day, steak three times a week and double portions of what other dorm residents eat the other two nights.

The cost, paid by the athletic department, is more than double what it takes to feed the average dorm resident, said NU Housing Director Richard Armstrong.

Ex-lineman Glenn Patterson, who played about the same time as Fiala, said he doesn't personally know of any "under-the-table" payments to NU football players, but he said he has heard "plenty of stories" from other athletes.

"I'm sure it goes on," he said. "I think it goes on everywhere."

Free Tutoring Service

Because of the 4-6 hours a day spent training, in briefings, traveling and what have you, players are privy to free tutoring services paid for by the athletic department as well as assistance from Academic Consultant Ursula Walsh, known affectionately as "scholarship coach."

The special attention includes help filling out applications for graduate work, pre-registering, and plotting long-range study plans by the time an athlete is a sophomore, Miss Walsh said.

Although all students have some sort of hit-and-miss system, athletes have a "really streamlined system" of "gathering and disseminating information" on "snap" courses and "soft touch" instructors, pointed out English instructor, Dr. Les Whipp.

"I think the university should be proud of what happens to its athletes," he said. "It's just that it's not available to everybody."

Exon Wants Report On Office Refurbishing

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Gov. J. J. Exon will ask the head of the Department of Administrative Services to report to him on a recent investigation involving expenditures by the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission for refurbishing its offices.

The report from the Legislature's fiscal staff contended the commission used some past appropriations to "improve creature comforts at the expense of law enforcement" and that it was "fairly evident that the intent of the law was stretched."

The report was made public Friday. In a Sunday interview, Exon said he would ask DAS chief Stan Matzke to look into the matter.

"I will just ask him when it was, how it was and so forth," Exon said. "All I know right now is what I read in the papers . . . I haven't been in touch with my aides about this . . . I will simply ask Stan about it Monday."

"I would point out here that, if I recall correctly, the report said there was no violation of any law involved," Exon said.

The report, from legislative fiscal analyst Eldin Ehrlich, was prepared at the request of Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel.

The report noted that while "the procedures by which this project was completed were somewhat unusual . . . there was no violation of statutes."

Ehrlich's report said DAS was supposed to control agency spending procedures and enforce purchasing laws, but that "there seemed to be evidence here that their leadership condoned a scheme to circumvent the laws to cover unappropriated expenditures."

The report involved more than $40,000 spent by the Liquor Commission for the remodeling, redecorating and furnishing and air conditioning of its temporary offices since February of 1973.

The report said the Legislature had not appropriated any capital construction money for the commission since 1972 and that the appropriations were for enforcement and staff. However, the money for the remodeling came from the 1973-74 appropriation, the report said.

Ehrlich's report involved a portion of remodeling money involving the Omaha architectural firm of Dana, Larson, Roubal and Associates.

State documents showed total funds spent for the remodeling of temporary commission offices came to some $53,000.

Pike: U.S. Open To Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Intelligence Committee said Sunday that U.S. intelligence has become ineffective and might not be able to warn the country of an impending attack.

A spokesman for the Central Intelligence Agency quickly denied the charge.

"If an attack were to be launched on America in the very near future it is my belief that America would not know that the attack were about to be launched," Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., said on CBS's "Face the Nation," when asked his assessment of U.S. intelligence.

A CIA spokesman said that agency director William E. Colby "obviously disagrees with chairman Pike's assertion that our country is open to surprise attack."

"Mr. Colby has said before and repeats today that American intelligence is the best in the world," the spokesman said in a telephone interview.

Pike also commented that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has made the major effort to block the functioning of his committee and said that an agreement is near with President Ford on declassifying secret documents.

Asked his assessment of the American intelligence community, Pike said there are thousands of dedicated workers obtaining intelligence, but "above the gathering level . . . it bogs down every single time."

Intelligence is not absorbed, it is not delivered, he said, and as far as the nation's getting its money's worth out of the work, "no way."

He noted that Kissinger is seeking congressional approval to place American civilians in a buffer zone in the Sinai and said the secretary is not helped in this by revelations that the intelligence community wasn't able to predict the last Mideast war.

Pike said following talks with Ford he is fairly close to agreement with the President on the making public of documents supplied to the committee.

He confirmed that when there is any question about making an item public, the matter will be sent directly to the President for a decision on whether the information must still remain secret.

If the committee still disagrees, he said, it could then take court action, but it will not release material on its own.

Committee access to secret documents was cut off by Ford after it released a four-word phrase indicating American ability to monitor communications in the Middle East.

Pike confirmed that the four words are "and greater communications security" contained in a document.

"The real fight," Pike said, is not over the declassification process but over what material the committee will have in the first place.

He said he will ask the full House to act Monday on a resolution saying classified material is needed by the Congress. If the House approves this, and the information is still not made available, he said a contempt of Congress citation might then be sought.

Pike added that the committee has probed the cost of the nation's intelligence operations and found the expense to be "tremendously understated."

Asked if his committee was looking into current operations, he said it has information that warnings of the impending coup in Portugal were available.

But, he added, the committee is not studying current intelligence activities in order not to give the administration the opportunity to say it is disrupting foreign policy.

Protesters Shot By Spanish Police

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Paramilitary police opened fire on protesters in the northern Basque town of Algorta on Sunday as the executions of five anti-government terrorists threw Spain into crisis.

Six persons were reported wounded in the Basque town, including an elderly woman shot in the leg.

The Spanish government began recalling ambassadors from a Europe outraged by the executions, while most West European countries pulled their ambassadors out of Madrid.

Opposition politicians warned that the nation faces two choices as long as Gen. Francisco Franco, 82, holds on to the power he won 36 years ago in the Civil War — runaway violence or a military coup.

From Scandinavia to Greece, and even in Spain itself, tens of thousands of Europeans staged demonstrations and in some cases resorted to violence to vent their opposition to Franco's rigid rule.

The influential Roman Catholic newspaper Ya, in one of its strongest and most direct editorials in many years, demanded "profound and radical transformations in the present political system . . . at all levels." It said delay would be "suicidal."

In Madrid, 1,500 young demonstrators attempted to turn a Sunday mass in San Isidro Cathedral into a requiem for the five young men shot by firing squads at dawn Saturday for killing policemen. They shouted "freedom" and "no to executions" as riot police raced to disperse them. Several persons were detained, but there was no violence.

Two of the executed men were members of the Basque separatist movement, which seeks autonomy for the three Basque provinces of northern Spain. The other three were members of an urban guerrilla group. Franco granted reprieves Friday night to six others condemned to die, including two women and a Basque with a brain injury.

The European opposition to the executions led to injuries for 60 Swiss police guards when a demonstration at the Spanish consulate in Geneva degenerated into a riot late Saturday, and there were also injuries in Paris. Protesters sacked and burned the Spanish Embassy in Portugal, a fire did heavy damage to the embassy in The Hague, Holland, and a bomb broke windows at the Spanish ambassador's residence in Turkey.

The European Common Market condemned the executions and European national leaders described the Franco regime in such terms as "barbarous" and "murderous." Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme called the Spanish leadership "satanic murderers."

Spain ordered its envoys home from The Netherlands, Norway, West Germany, Portugal and the Vatican. Among the countries recalling ambassadors from Madrid were Sweden, Belgium, Denmark, Britain, The Netherlands, East and West Germany, Portugal, France, Norway and Poland. Most said it was just for consultations.

Bayh Raps Ford's Veto Use

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Fremont — Planting the seeds for a likely 1976 Nebraska presidential primary campaign, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana Sunday said Gerald Ford is "a veto-prone President . . . who has brought the government to a standstill."

"The President uses the veto as a political weapon," the Democratic senator declared.

And then Ford "blames the Congress for no energy program," Bayh said.

"Makes Me Very Angry" "That makes me very angry . . . angry enough to run for President."

Bayh is expected to formally announce his candidacy sometime in October. Shortly thereafter, a Nebraska Bayh organization will be in operation.

"I'd like to run very much in the Nebraska primary," Bayh told newsmen prior to addressing a Democratic First Congressional District caucus.

"I'm trying to find out this trip (whether) there is enough support for a Bayh campaign. I've got to decide whether we can pull people together or whether we would be just another who would divide them."

Nine candidates have already formally entered the Democratic presidential sweepstakes, and Bayh said he will make a final determination next month.

Ford's policies, he said, have failed to lift the nation out of its economic abyss and handed the power to determine foreign and domestic oil prices to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The Congress "passed a good energy program" designed to emphasize conservation methods rather than price hikes to reduce consumption, Bayh said.

But the President vetoed it and has now allowed the price of domestic production to rise to the level of the foreign market, the senator said.

"Phony Indictment" Yet, when OPEC nations announced a 10% price hike Saturday, Ford blamed the Congress, he noted. "That is a phony indictment," he declared.

"We can't get two-thirds of the members of Congress to agree on a program . . . but government is at a standstill if you have to govern with two-thirds."

Bayh also criticized Ford and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz for "a non-agricultural policy . . . which pits the farmer against the worker, when they should be working together."

Butz, he said, is "an agri-business secretary" rather than one who considers the farmer's best interests.

"I was once a student of his at Patrice," Bayh noted.

Butz, he said, gave him "a lot better grade than I'd give him as secretary of agriculture."

Anxious For Shipments

Bayh said he is "anxious to see the shipments (of grain to the Soviet Union) moving." They are currently embargoed.

Sunday night, Bayh met with potential supporters at an Omaha dinner. He will return to the state next Thursday for a press conference in Omaha.

Shortly after Bayh's Fremont speech, First District Democrats voted to form a committee to investigate the possibility of filing a class action lawsuit to "recover damages" sustained by farmers as a result of administration farm policies.

Would Seek 'Difference'

The suit would seek payments to farmers for the difference between farm prices and 100% of parity.

The resolution said the administration had urged full farm production, promising access to world markets.

Now the administration is "tampering" with access to those markets, the resolution stated.

Patty Registered At College Under Alias, Investigators Say

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Authorities say Patricia Hearst registered under an alias at a college in Sacramento a few weeks before a series of crimes there that may be linked to the Symbionese Liberation Army.

One of her attorneys said Sunday that she is suffering mental anguish from court-ordered psychiatric testing and should be moved from jail to a hospital.

Miss Hearst registered at Sacramento City College on Jan. 31, 1975, under the name Sue Hendricks, the Sacramento Bee quoted investigators as confirming.

William and Emily Harris, her SLA traveling companions, signed up the same day under the aliases Steve Broudy and Suzanne Lanphear, the newspaper said.

Student ID cards under false names bearing the HARRISs' photographs reportedly were found in the San Francisco house where they were living when arrested on Sept. 18. A card with Miss Hearst's photo was found at an undisclosed location.

Richard Gillies, college dean of students, said the FBI questioned him last week about the three students. Gillies said identification was not required for registration and any registered student could get a photo ID card from the student association for $1.

Gillies said the woman registered as Sue Hendricks enrolled in business English, secretarial practices and intermediate typing. The woman registered as Suzanne Lanphear signed up for data processing, and the man registered as Steve Broudy enrolled in a general education course, he added.

He said the three apparently never attended any classes and were dropped from enrollment lists after a few weeks.

Sacramento Sheriff Duane Lowe said, meanwhile, that "the possibility existed" that Miss Hearst and the HARRISs, using their aliases, attended the murder trial of SLA members Joseph Remiro and Russell Little but that he doubted they did.

The trial, conducted under heavy security, ended with both men convicted June 9 of the murder of Oakland schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

Sacramento County Deputy Dist. Atty. Geoffrey Burroughs has said Miss Hearst is under investigation for possible involvement in a $15,000 bank holdup in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael in which a woman customer was killed on April 21.

Miss Hearst already faces federal bank robbery charges for a San Francisco holdup one year earlier.

It also has been reported that detectives believe some of the same people involved in the Carmichael robbery may have taken part in the Feb. 23, 1973, holdup of a Sacramento savings and loan in which $3,729 was stolen. Sheriff's spokesman Bill Miller declined comment on how closely the incidents may be connected.

And authorities reportedly also are studying the possibility that an execution-style slaying in Sacramento on April 26 was committed with a gun found in one of the San Francisco houses used as SLA hideouts.

Investigators said the AR 15 rifle may have been the weapon used to kill Ronald E. Winter, 36, a narcotics user believed involved in illegal weapons sales who was shot 12 times in the chest and stomach.

Philip A. Thompson of Sacramento was arrested a few days later in that shooting and faces trial next week, but no murder weapon ever was found.

Meanwhile, defense attorney Terence Hallinan said Sunday she is suffering mental anguish from taking psychological tests and should be moved from her jail cell to a hospital.

Hallinan said he watched while Miss Hearst took a three-hour battery of tests Saturday — including the Rorschach inkblot test — administered by court-appointed University of California psychologist Dr. Margaret Singer.

"When she described the inkblots — oh, my God," Hallinan said in an interview, "everything was tragedy. Every interpretation was sad. She was so blue I was crying."

Further examinations were scheduled Sunday and Tuesday at the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City, where Miss Hearst has been held since her capture on Sept. 18.

Hallinan said attorneys would try again Tuesday to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to transfer the 21-year-old newspaper heiress to a hospital.

Miss Hearst is due back in court that day for a progress report on the tests, ordered by Judge Carter when her attorneys claimed she was mentally incompetent to undergo cross-examination in her bail hearing. The judge at that time turned down a defense plea that she be moved to a San Francisco hospital for the tests.

"We feel she should be out of the county jail, especially since this taping has ruined any feeling of confidentiality she might have," Hallinan said in an interview.

Prison officials say all Miss Hearst's conversations with jail visitors are taped as a routine security measure. Excerpts from one conversation were made public by Judge Carter as material to aid the specialist examining her.

Attorney F. Lee Bailey, a recent addition to the Hearst defense team, said he thinks Patty can get as fair a trial in San Francisco as anywhere.

"San Francisco is a good place to get a jury," Bailey said. "There is no reason to seek a change of venue on this trial not when you are getting the cover of Time and Newsweek and indications are you will keep getting them."

At a rally attended by about 100 SLA supporters in Berkeley on Saturday, speakers called on Patty to clear up the confusion created by her affidavit claiming she was tortured and brainwashed into joining the terrorist band.

Search For Hoffa's Body In Swampy Field Stopped

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — Investigators called off a search for the body of former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa on Sunday, saying they hoped for more precise information from an underworld informant who said Hoffa had been buried in a swampy field here.

Squads of state policemen, using a mechanical digger, spent 2 1/2 hours Sunday morning digging at a half-dozen locations in the 29-acre field and an adjacent wooded area before the operation was halted. They had been digging for more than 24 hours without success.

The search began Friday night after the Senate Subcommittee on Investigations in Washington passed on a tip from an unnamed underworld source who said Hoffa's body could be found in the field owned by the Waterford school district. FBI agents, state troopers and other officers trudged through the muddy field and woods.

Vincent Piersante, head of the Michigan Organized Crime Fighting Division, said he still felt the tip had "a lot of credence."

"It is my impression the underworld source is in touch with a person who was here when Hoffa was buried," Piersante said. "I put credence in the information because it fits what we know about the over-all circumstances of the disappearance."

Piersante said he hoped the informant could be brought to the site to aid the search. "We would agree to back off and let him mark an X on the spot," Piersante said.

Piersante said investigators are operating on the theory the underworld informant provided the information to the Senate subcommittee to take the pressure off Mafia figures being investigated in connection with Hoffa's disappearance.

Hoffa dropped from sight July 30 after telling his wife he was going to meet with Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, identified in testimony before a U.S. Senate committee as a reputed Mafia figure in the Detroit area.

There is no evidence that Hoffa has been murdered, but associates have said they believe he was slain by underworld enemies whose influence in the Teamsters he threatened.

The site of the weekend search is some 15 miles northwest of the Machus Red Fox Restaurant where Hoffa was last seen and 25 miles from the Hoffa home.

Piersante said that in "days and weeks ahead, investigators will examine adjacent areas for Hoffa's body. But they will do so only after checking out through sources with the tipster."

Patty's Release Predicted

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper predicted Sunday that Patricia Hearst would eventually be freed and intimidated that her parents' wealth and influence would play a large part in that event.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, newspaper of the Young Communist League, devoted a lengthy article to the background, kidnaping and capture of Miss Hearst.

"Sooner or later, Patricia will be released on bail because there will be no problem with money," the paper said. "And almost certainly full freedom will come."

"Hearst granddaughters were not born into this world to suffer."

The newspaper article reflected the official Marxist position that in capitalist countries, the rich enjoy special advantages.

Komsomolskaya Pravda also intimated that Miss Hearst's alleged involvement in later criminal activities with her captors stemmed from an indulgent upbringing.

"In school, she wanted a car, so she was given it. Her monthly allowances of $300 were too little, so her parents gave her a check for $8,000 on her birthday," the paper said.

"Her parents indulged any caprices, and the influence of her parents convinced her that she could have everything. Life didn't give her any reason to believe the contrary," it added.

The aftermath of her kidnaping "shows what a fashionable liberal education leads to," Komsomolskaya Pravda said. "It must be supposed that for Pat Hearst, it was a game — a very interesting and exciting game of underground war without any risk."

The newspaper also said the history of Miss Hearst was regarded as a "TV drama" in the United States and that the capture of Miss Hearst, "the final act of the drama, disappointed spectators because there was no resistance."

The increase in the cost of gasoline to $1.83 a gallon was expected to cause Israeli motorists to cut down on their car travel.

"I will only use my car to travel to work," said Dagan, and from now on "I will be healthier because I will go everywhere else on foot."

"It's good, but it's too little too late," said Amnon Bierav, an Israeli youth magazine editor.

"I will spend less, drive less and waste less," he said, but "only if the government cuts back will the workers also cut back."

Leah Lubin, an Israeli housewife from Tel Aviv said "we expected it, but we didn't think it would be so drastic."

Some brands of cigarettes went up under the new measures, and five per cent was added to the price tags of soap, wine and sundry items.

An average Israeli worker who earns about $65 weekly will now have to spend about a quarter of his weekly earnings to fill up the tank of his small car.

Finance Minister Yehosua Rabinowitz told the state radio that Israelis can "be secure in the knowledge that the burden is distributed fairly."

Rabinowitz was quoted by the radio as telling a parliamentary economic committee later in the day that the government was pursuing "a policy of economic brinkmanship as there was no alternative."

Rabinowitz warned that in the future the state could not afford to bear the burden of subsidizing 14 basic food commodities such as bread, sugar and milk, and these too would also have to increase in price.

Israelis now pay about 25 cents for a quart of milk and 16 cents for a loaf of bread. Last November when the government reduced the subsidies on basic food staples along with a 43% devaluation, there was rioting in the streets.

Israelis Arrest Arab Guerrillas
Janaim, of Nablus, had recruited the suspects into several cells of the Saiga guerrilla organization, based in Damascus. The suspects were found with caches of rifles, grenades and explosives, the command said.

New York Times News Summary

Political Lead Falling Off
Bremen, West Germany — As voters apparently expressed their uneasiness over the country's economic problems, West Germany's leading political party suffered a major setback in a state election. The Social Democratic Party barely held its majority in the Bremen state legislature, receiving 49% of the vote, down 6% from the election four years ago.

U.S. Arms Buying Sought
Born — As the North Atlantic Treaty allies move toward a new generation of weapons, a policy dispute is developing over whether the United States, which has dominated the arms business, will now start buying more European equipment for its forces. This has been the major issue in discussions between European officials and Defense Secretary James F. Schlesinger, who went to Europe to urge the European nations to increase their defense spending. The Europeans are demanding "standardization," under which the NATO allies would abandon their nationalistic approach and agree upon similar weapons for their forces. This way, they believe, the United States would purchase more weapons from its allies.

Smallpox Nearly Eradicated
Dacca — The worldwide eradication of smallpox is expected in the near future by officials of the World Health Organization. They believe that the battle against the disease will end early next year, if not sooner, but that two years of further searching for new cases will be necessary after the last case is cured before an international commission will be able to declare officially that smallpox has been wiped out.

Experience talks ...about the Electric Heat Pump

For months, we've been telling Lincoln Electric customers about the virtues of the amazing new Electric Heat Pump. Now, read about the Heat Pump from some of your neighbors who know about it firsthand.

Francis and Gertrude Schmehl say:
"...with a well-insulated house, and LES rates, I feel that this is an economical way to heat a house. Our bills averaged $42.00 per month in 1968-69 and $45.00 per month in 1973...and this provides for all electric services. Also, in the current fuel situation, it is rather nice to be 100% electric."

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel devalued its currency by 10% Sunday, causing consternation among Israelis over their economic future and criticism by some that the devaluation should have been greater.

The devaluation means the Israeli pound is now worth seven to the dollar against 4.20 in November 1974, and that Israelis will be paying more for imported goods. Israel's economy took a dive amid arms purchases in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and faces continued pressures from the costs of supporting the nation's war apparatus.

One man worried by the latest government moves was Varom Vagan, a 38-year-old advertising executive who has been trying to move his wife and two children from his tiny three-room apartment in Tel Aviv but says "every time I save some money, the prices go up."

"I am depressed," said Vagan. "The government tries to fill the holes in their bucket with straw, and it goes right on leaking."

Government economists said the latest measures would put the price index up by about five per cent, but other economists said a realistic guess would be nearer nine per cent.

Sadat Reveals Secret Sinai Pact Provisions

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said Sunday the United States has assured Egypt that Israel will not attack Syria, that there will be another engagement agreement on the Golan Heights and that the Palestinians will take part in efforts to reach an over-all settlement.

"If there are any secret provisions (of the new Sinai settlement with Israel) they are these," Sadat said in a nationally televised speech to mark the fifth anniversary of the former President Gamal Abdel Nasser's death.

In his third defense of the pact since it was signed Sept. 1, Sadat again attacked the Soviet Union as an unreliable ally.

He also accused Jordan's King Hussein of negotiating with Israel for an over-all settlement in the occupied west bank nearly a year ago.

Sadat said Egypt's recovery of two key mountain passes in Sinai and the Abu Rudeis oil fields were "simply one step toward an over-all settlement. We reject this bargaining and even bluffing about treason" to the Arab cause coming from Syria's ruling Baath party and the Palestinians.

In stronger terms than ever, Sadat repeated his charge Syria was ready to throw in the towel and had sought through the Russians a cease-fire on the second day of the October 1973 war with Israel.

"If it had not been for Egypt there would not have been a war," he said in angry tones. "If we had accepted the cease-fire the Syrians wanted there would not have been an oil war.

He said Egypt finally accepted a cease-fire when the war was two weeks old because it "was facing the combined efforts of Israel and the United States while the Soviet Union acted as an enemy behind my back."

But Sadat refrained from any direct criticism of Syrian President Hafez Assad, saying he did not want an argument "because I have real affection for him and he has always been truthful with me."

His long review of relations with the Soviet Union in the years after he succeeded Nasser pictured that country as an unreliable ally that repeatedly had let Egypt down in a crisis by failing to supply advanced weapons.

After recalling that Egypt went to war with far less reserve ammunition than Syria because of Russian reluctance to meet their commitments, Sadat said he accepted the cease-fire "because I had the Soviet Union behind me and I was afraid of them just as much as I was of the Americans."

He was speaking to a joint session of the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party, and the 360-member People's Assembly.

The gunmen were making "vague demands for certain people to be released," he said, but the two prisoners they named had already completed their sentences. "They have been told there can be no bargain of any kind," he said.

A police spokesman added, "Water has been passed in to them, and we have asked if they want anything else. They have said they do not want anything."

The release of one hostage, identified as Alfredo Olivelli, came some 15 hours after the gunmen, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and pistols, burst into the restaurant in the fashionable Knightsbridge district as it was closing.

Jamaican Gunmen, Police In Stalemate

LONDON (AP) — Three Jamaican gunmen took eight Italian waiters hostage in a restaurant, released one, then settled down to sweat out the night in a tiny basement storeroom. Negotiations were reported stalemated.

The gunmen, who seized the hostages at about 1:15 a.m. Sunday morning after a robbery plot failed, were holed up early Monday in the 10- by 12-foot storeroom with the ventilation switched off, but still refused to surrender.

On Sunday evening the gunmen released one of the eight original hostages in what was understood to be a sign of good faith.

The police had the area surrounded with about 200 men including marksmen, leaving the gunmen no apparent escape route. Police said they were refusing to bargain.

"We have been asking them to put down their arms and not to harm anyone and no harm will come to them. But we are making no progress," said a police spokesman.

Police, listening through an air vent, said they could hear the gunmen arguing among themselves as to what to do.

"They may offer a lot of bravado but I can tell you they will be damned scared," said one police officer. "They're in a corner. They don't know how to get out of it and they're bloody confused."

The situation inside the storeroom "will be a pig hole by now," said Margherita Roscelli, whose brother-in-law was among the hostages. "You can hardly breathe in there. After all, it's only a larder. It's not big enough to take all those people."

The police were able to communicate with the gunmen but were not negotiating with them, Sir Robert Mark, commissioner of the metropolitan police, said. Their demands were confused, he added.

Police had not been able to speak to the hostages but they were believed to be well, he said.

Weight Bar Kills Frechette

NORFOLK, Mass. (AP) — Mark Frechette earned brief fame as a film star and a measure of notoriety as an armed bank robber. Now he is dead at the age of 27, the victim of a freak prison accident.

Officials at Norfolk State Prison said Frechette's body was found in the prison recreation room. He apparently died when he was lying on a bench and the bar of a 160-pound weight he was lifting fell on his throat.

Frechette was an unknown when Italian director Michelangelo Antonioni picked him to costar in his 1970 film "Zabriskie Point," which was designed to show American youth had an inner sickness.

After the movie failed with the critics and at the box office, Frechette made one other film, in Italy, then moved into a commune in Boston's Fort Hill area. A carpenter, he reportedly gave the commune $60,000 from his movie earnings.

He apparently had dropped his movie career, and his name, never a household word, was in obscurity until Aug. 29, 1973, when he joined two other commune members in robbing a Boston branch bank. One of the robbers was shot to death by a policeman.

Frechette and the other surviving robber pleaded guilty to armed robbery and were sentenced to six to 15 years in prison.

Earlier this year Frechette directed a group of other inmates in a play called The White House Transcripts, which recreates former President Nixon's talks with White House advisers on the Watergate break-in. It drew some favorable comment from critics.

Ft. Chaffee Water Bill To Be Paid

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Now that the Army has decided to pay its bill, Mayor Jack B. Freeze says the city will not turn off the water to Ft. Chaffee, the nation's largest Vietnamese refugee center.

"We won't cut off water to anybody if they pay their bill," Freeze said Sunday. The city had threatened to turn off Chaffee's water on Oct. 10 if an arrangement was not made to pay the estimated $40,000 in back payments the city maintains the Army owes.

More than 15,000 refugees currently are at Chaffee. With the arrival of the refugees in May, Chaffee's water consumption jumped from 103,000 gallons per day to 2.5 million gallons per day.

Maj. Gen. David E. Ott, commander of Ft. Sill, Okla., the post that oversees Chaffee, said Saturday the Army would appeal to the Arkansas Public Service Commission the decision by Fort Smith to more than double wholesale water rates.

But until the commission acts, Ott said the Army would pay the 21.3 cents per thousand gallons the city is asking.

On March 4, the city upped its wholesale rate from 8.5 cents per thousand gallons for Ft. Chaffee, the cities of Barling and Van Buren and six rural water districts. The water rates were increased to finance needed system improvements, Freeze said.

City Administrator Ray Riley said he considers the Army "about $40,000 in arrears."

Freeze says he feels the Army has every right to appeal. But he added: "The Army is the only one that has complained. We met with the mayor of Van Buren and showed him the formula and he agreed it was fair, even though he would have liked for it to have been less."

No Progress Made In Boys' Deaths

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

While an explosion and a fatal shooting captured headlines last week, the search for clues about the deaths of two Lincoln boys continued quietly.

But progress on the Jacob Surber-Jon Simpson case can be summed up in one word, County Atty. Ron Lahners said Sunday night. None.

"We got kind of busy on other things last week," he said.

Nevertheless, the case which had claimed an estimated 1,500 man-hours early last week still has received "probably a couple hundred more" man-hours of attention since then, Lahners said.

Leads obtained from the discovery of Simpson's body Sept. 22 still are being pursued, he said, but they are "investive" and do not point to anything substantive such as a suspect or places and times of death.

Lahners said one of two men seen near the State Fairgrounds and wanted for questioning was located last week, but investigators learned nothing from him.

Surber, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Surber of 2205 S. 24th, and Simpson, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harding Simpson of 2743 Everett, were reported missing Aug. 30 after being driven to the State Fairgrounds by Surber's sister.

Authorities handled the case as a "typical missing persons report" when the two reportedly were seen in the Broken Bow area, eating ice cream cones in

But none of those leads checked out.

On Sept. 8, the case took a grisly turn when a Southeast Community Technical College student found Surber's badly decomposed body face down in a drainage ditch a few feet west of Antelope Creek and one block south of the fairgrounds.

The body had been in the ditch "at least four days," Lahners said. A cause of death still has not been positively determined.

Police, deputy sheriffs and helicopter observers began an extensive search of the fairgrounds, the area around the drainage ditch and portions of Salt Creek. Sewer lines and the railroad right-of-way from 18th St. to 27th St. were also searched.

In addition, investigators went to Missouri and Arkansas to interview carnival workers who were in Lincoln for the State Fair.

But once again progress in the case slowed, prompting Lahners to say that the best chance of learning what happened to Surber lay in finding Simpson.

On Sept. 22, two weeks after Surber's body was found, a Gooch Mill cleaning crew foreman opened the hatch of a railroad car, dropped a light in and saw what was later identified as the body of Jon Simpson.

The time of death could not be determined positively, but an autopsy showed that Simpson died of multiple stab wounds in the chest.

From Aug. 29 to Sept. 3, the boxcar in which the body was found was on a siding four blocks from where Surber's body was found, according to Lahners.

"You can speculate that both Simpson and Surber died in the same manner," he told reporters last week.

This week, the investigation and the uncertainty continue.

Sadat Reveals Secret Sinai Pact Provisions

Street-Widening Unsolved

At a recent two-day transportation and energy workshop, public officials ended up at about the only place they could. The biggest item agreed upon was one against street-widenings that disrupt residential neighborhoods unless absolutely necessary to accomplish transportation objectives.

Well, that really doesn't say much, but what more can be said? It was pointed out after the workshop that some of the policies endorsed will be implemented only through voluntary citizen responses and that it will be left up to local government to encourage action and changes in life styles which turn these desired goals into reality.

It's readily conceded, it was reported, that American society is car-oriented and the use of the auto is well entrenched in the nation's life style.

The above pretty well defines the appropriate role of government in the immediate future. We do not believe it is the role of government to force upon citizens a way of life in transportation that is not wanted nor clearly understood by the vast majority of people.

The question of the future of the automobile, after all, is not yet an objective question. It is, rather, almost purely subjective at this time.

LES Seems To Win

With some reluctance, we have concluded that the best course of action for the City Council at this time is approval of the ordinance authorizing Lincoln Electric System participation in the Fort Calhoun nuclear generation Station No. 2. We say this, basically, as a result of being unable to propose an effective alternative.

We believe that LES demand projections for Lincoln are accurate enough to rely upon. Thus, we believe that LES is going to have to provide substantially more power for customers in the next 10 years than is the case today.

Thus, there is no escape from the fact that LES will be required to find additional sources of electricity to sell. We cannot vouch for the figures LES uses in advancing the cause of the Fort Calhoun project and a coal-burning generation plant in Wyoming.

On the other hand, we cannot indict those figures come up with, nor can we alternate sources of energy ourselves.

As to Fort Calhoun, it should be remembered that the Lincoln City Council is not deciding whether that plant will be

We do not know what the ultimate outcome of the current gasoline situation will be. Natural events which turn the public from the private car to something else are one thing, but government edicts toward this end are another.

Those who believe otherwise, who believe in penalties for those who drive beyond a prescribed limit, who believe that the law should be used to change the public attitude, are simply overwhelmed with their own importance and enlightenment. The way of life in this nation, including transportation, is a product of industrial ingenuity and overall public attitudes and opinion and that's the way it should remain.

Thus, we may well put more environmental considerations into our final transportation mix, but transportation does not become totally subject to such considerations. We want to protect the environment, but we have to have an adequate system of transportation, too.

Such does not really solve many immediate problems but it does tend to put aside the fuzzy thinkers who can see nothing but either the environmental or transportation side of things.

built. Thus, the desirability of the source from an environmental point of view is not fundamental to the Lincoln decision.

The Lincoln question is: Assuming Fort Calhoun is built, should LES be in the position of a part-owner for power purchase purposes? Again, we find with LES.

Our reluctance in this matter stems partly from an historic suspicion of the original structuring of LES and its overall motivation since that time and partly from the dramatic increase in electric rates that we have had and will experience in the immediate future. Yet, Lincoln power rates are relatively low and power companies throughout the state and nation, public and private, have all had to face up to such rate increases.

While we are going to be paying through the nose for future electric needs, it is of utmost importance that Lincoln be able to meet its power demands. It seems that we might well risk this ability by denying LES Fort Calhoun participation and that risk is too great to take.

Jerry Warner is at it again.

The architect of Nebraska's 1967 state school aid program and the 1969 highway improvement package is now zeroing in on a long-range plan for higher education in the state.

Some legislative study committees may be easily dismissed as exercises in motion, not substance. Lots of talk, a flurry of meetings, a fancy report . . . and no action.

But the higher education study which Warner launched last week with a committee of eight other senators is the real thing.

With Warner leading the way, in a manner reminiscent of the comprehensive highway improvement study, this committee is going to plug and pound away until it defines the role and outlines the mission of every institution of higher education in the state and builds a plan for their future development.

The committee is going to take the time needed to do the job right. No quick or tentative decisions will be hurriedly or haphazardly reached and reluctantly handed to the 1976 Legislature. Instead, these will be hard and firm recommendations, reached after months of study and previously submitted for public debate and refinement, which will be laid before the 1977 Legislature.

When Warner grabs an issue, he does not let go.

The journey toward legislative enactment may be long and tedious and tough, filled with setbacks and more than a little pain, but he will travel it to its final destination.

When he first came to the Legislature in 1963, he introduced his first state school aid bill. And he kept coming back with one until it finally was enacted in 1967.

Then Warner came back session after session with funding bills to bring the school aid program to full bloom.

The Legislature approved three of them before it was finally able to override Governor Exon's objections in 1974. (Voters subsequently threw the law out in a referendum vote last November.)

Warner's highway study legislation was enacted in 1969 after (literally) years of careful research and study and public review. It took some compromises to get it all together, but each recommendation of substance ultimately won legislative approval.

Warner is ready to pursue the higher education study with the same determination which led to legislative success with the school aid and highway reform issues.

A special committee has been placed together to hammer out the education plan. And it's an intriguing lineup, a combination of old and new, with some legislative powerhouses, some leaders of the future and almost half of the membership of the pivotal Appropriations Committee.

Appropriations Chairman Dick Marvel and Education Chairman Frank Lewis sit on the committee. Other appropriations representatives include Harold Simpson, John Savage and Leslie Stull.

Others are John Murphy, Don Dworak and Larry Stoney, the latter two with only one legislative session under their belts.

In that group should be found a variety of expression and concern, enough to assure citizens that there will be some new ideas and that every conceivable alternative will be explored and the interests of each institution will be heard.

After years of frustration and delay in attempting to coordinate the activities of the institutions, senators are now ready to spell out the role of the University of Nebraska, the state colleges, the technical community colleges and (by inference) the private colleges.

The idea is partly to control duplication and competition and partly to provide Nebraskans with the best education system at the lowest cost, assuring that all needs are met within the ability of the taxpayer-citizen to provide for them.

Senators will be talking about curriculum, tuition, tax support, enrollment projections . . . you name it . . . with an eye fixed on the future. Keep an eye on THEM. They mean business.

Once he sets out to complete a chore, Jerry Warner is likely to get it done.

MARQUIS CHILDS

BOSTON — Smoldering beneath a surface outwardly calm — at least so long as the federal marshals and the police stay on guard — is the bitter controversy over busing. With one major exception, the support for forced busing under federal court order is minimal.

The blacks, about 20% of the population, see busing as a symbol of their determination to break down the barriers that have segregated them in so many departments of life.

It is not that black parents are at ease about the comparative success thus far of school integration. They are understandably edgy that an outbreak of violence may spill over onto their children.

The concern, as elsewhere in the nation and for a variety of reasons, is over the deteriorating quality of education. Not only busing, but a teachers' strike has kept the schools in Boston in turmoil. Tension in the classrooms where the boycott by whites is slowly ending makes teaching an exercise in diplomacy.

A complication is the mayoralty contest, although it is not much of a contest since Mayor Kevin White is considered a shoo-in for re-election, both in the primary and in November, against his opponent, State Senator Joseph F. Timilty. Both are Democrats in a non-partisan election and both have taken a hands-off position on busing.

Handsome and articulate in the tradition of the Kennedys, Mayor White believes the law must be enforced so long as it is the law, yet he deprecates the consequences in the disruption of the city's school system and the animosity of white against black.

That this should be happening in Boston is a rude shock. The setting for some of the greatest educational and cultural institutions in the country, both Boston and Massachusetts have long had a liberal tradition. This was the only state to go for George McGovern in the election of 1972. It has been looked on as the inheritor of Emerson, Thoreau and the other great New Englanders. Boston was the center of the anti-slavery movement that led up to the Civil War.

But there can be no disguising the depth of the feeling that this conflict has stirred. The invisible walls that isolate the separate neighborhoods suggest a failure of coherence, of communication, more revealing than the struggle over school integration.

In the early part of this century a play that had wide recognition was "The Melting Pot" by Israel Zangwill. The theme was the merger of races and creeds in the melting pot of America, with the great tide of immigration that brought so many diverse peoples to these shores. Here was the hope of the world, transcending old ties and ancient prejudices.

In light of the Boston experience, there is a large question whether this melting has taken place to any extent whatsoever. Charleston and South Boston are redoubts of ethnic opposition to any change in their way of life. From these strongholds of Catholicism have come the mothers shouting their Hail Marys and carrying on prayer vigils asking God to grant them deliverance from the assault of the black invaders.

These communities are as remote from, say, Cambridge, Harvard, and the area around MIT and Boston University as though they were in another country. In the same way, although for quite different reasons, the concentration of blacks in Roxbury gives the impression of a separate world having little relation to the main stream of the city's life.

No one can argue that busing will bring down the invisible walls. At best, if it can proceed in comparative peace, it can demonstrate to young blacks and whites that in spite of their backgrounds, they have much in common.

But as those in high political office, wanting to wish away the bitter onus of busing, say with increasing fervor, action must come in housing, job opportunities and other remedies if there is to be true integration.

While this has been President Ford's theme, he is doing precious little about it.

I listened to a group of black women speaking more in sorrow than in anger about the conflict. As one woman put it, "Why do they ask God to help them as though at this point God would intervene to enforce what is immoral?"

Morality is surely on the side of the integrationists. The invisible walls of a segregated way of life are a contradiction of all the professions of equality that are at the base of our system.

But, to this observer, to put the whole burden of correcting this wrong on the young and the troubled school system seems almost equally wrong.

WASHINGTON — The President and the press are giving each other a lot of free advice these days, not for the first time. The press is advising the skipper to be a little more careful, lest he gain a few votes and lose his life, and the President is advising the press to be a little less sensational lest it make hoards of assassins and encourage the violence it deprecates.

The odds are that both will agree in principle but go on as before: The President will keep working the crowds, with or without his safety vest, and the press will keep playing up the unusual, both on the assumption that this is what pays off with the public.

Ford is obviously not going to listen to the warnings that scrimmaging with crowds may be injurious to his health, but he might listen to the argument that it's bad for the Republican Party.

WASHINGTON — Self-identified Democrats now hold an unprecedented percentage point lead over self-identified Republicans. Nationally, the ratio between them is now almost two-to-one.

This and other information on the political preferences of the American people emerged in a nationwide Phillips-Sindlinger telephone poll taken between Aug. 14 and Aug. 27.

Here are the principal findings:

—36% of Americans now identify themselves as Democrats while only 19.2% call themselves Republicans.

—33.9% describe themselves as Independents, with men more strongly independent and women more inclined to state a party preference.

—Since 1974, the Democrat lead has widened from an average 35 to 21% to a current 36 to 19%.

This tends to prove "O'Neill's Law." Tip O'Neill, the Democratic leader in the House and Ford's old adversary, friend and present golfing companion, has always said:

"Gerry's a lovely guy but maybe a lousy president. You have to see a lot of him to know how little there is to see."

The reasons for Ford's decline in the polls are fairly clear. He has very little to say on these trips around the country about the present and coming predicaments of the nation, and he says it rather badly.

He is a dead honest conservative confronted with radical problems — high rates of inflation, unemployment, frustration and even anger — and he gives the country locker-room pep talks on the glories of fiscal responsibility.

Nixon failed because he didn't have any principles, and ironically, Ford may very well fail because he has. For he honestly believes that he can bring the country back to its senses by vetoing the Democratic spendthrifts. New York is drowning and he gives it a lecture and throws it an anchor. "Waste Not, Want Not," he says. . . "Help

He is such a modest guy with such long association and sympathy for the sort of conservatives who dominate Republican nominating conventions, that he actually takes the Reagan threat seriously.

His main political problem actually is not to worry about the nomination, but to win the election, and this he cannot do with the Hooverish speeches he has been making in Dallas and the West. He is running a little south of center, and assuming that the country is in a conservative counter-revolution against the welfare state.

Maybe so, but unless the American people have suddenly decided on a course of spiritual reformation and redemption, which is hard to notice here in Times Square, the Ford strategy of dramatizing his political limitations all over the country is not likely to be very successful.

But now he is so obviously in the political race that he is diminishing his most precious asset: the feeling in the country that he was concentrating on a hard job and not on himself or his political ambitions.

Ever since he announced that he was a candidate, he has had to be careful to disguise his political speeches so that the Democrats couldn't demand equal time under FCC regulations. So he has been mixing up his presidential and political responsibilities, so that nobody quite knows what is political and what is presidential, and who should pay for what.

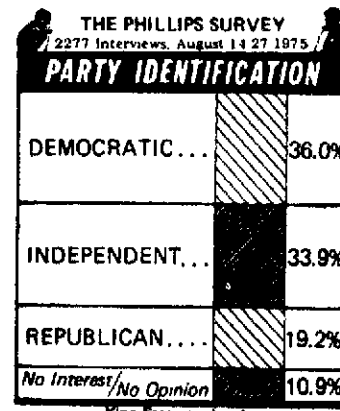

This has not helped his good-guy, straight-guy image, and has led him into literally scores of speeches, interviews, coffee klatches, offhand comments, and so forth.

You should try to get through the transcript of everything the President actually says on one of these three-day invasions of the country. Taken on the whole, it is troubling and revealing — obvious, trite, amiably shallow, and all the more so because it is so utterly sincere.

So maybe these trips should be reconsidered on political grounds if not on security grounds. They may not be bad for his physical health, but they are proving to be bad for his political future.

GOP Identification Trailing Badly

Republican.

From there it has been downhill for the GOP. When the Watergate crisis exploded in the spring of 1973, our surveys showed the party ratio changing to 37% Democratic, 21% Republican. The pattern was erratic through much of 1973, because voter disgust with the entire political process caused a surge of independent refusal to identify with either party. But by the end of 1973, we found 34% of Americans saying they were Democrats while just 18 to 19% said they were Republicans. By spring, 1974, we found 36% Democratic and 21% Republican.

Gerald Ford's accession has not stopped GOP shippage. After some erratic movement during the period of the Nixon pardon, here is the range that emerged for the winter-spring of 1974-75: 31 to 33% Democratic versus 17 to 18% Republican. Both parties lost ground in this period to either alienation from the political process or sentiment for a new party.

Polling for Aug. 14-27 produced the following split in self-identification: 36% Democratic, 19.2% Republican and 33.9% Independent, with 10.9% asserting no opinion, no interest or preference for a new party. Volunteered preference for a new party has gone down since spring, what with lack of follow-through on speculation that such a movement might be formed around Ronald Reagan and George Wallace. However, such persons do not appear to have returned to GOP ranks. The current percentage point gap between Democrats and Republicans — 16.8% — is the widest we have ever recorded.

At the moment, women are more prone to party identification than men. Among women, 37.5% said they were Democrats, 29.7% said they were Independents and 19.8% said they were Republicans. In contrast, 34.4% of men called themselves Independents, while 34% chose the Democratic label and 18.5% preferred to be called Republican.

Street-Widening Unsolved

At a recent two-day transportation and energy workshop, public officials ended up at about the only place they could. The biggest item agreed upon was one against street-widenings that disrupt residential neighborhoods unless absolutely necessary to accomplish transportation objectives.

Well, that really doesn't say much, but what more can be said? It was pointed out after the workshop that some of the policies endorsed will be implemented only through voluntary citizen responses and that it will be left up to local government to encourage action and changes in life styles which turn these desired goals into reality.

It's readily conceded, it was reported, that American society is car-oriented and the use of the auto is well entrenched in the nation's life style.

The above pretty well defines the appropriate role of government in the immediate future. We do not believe it is the role of government to force upon citizens a way of life in transportation that is not wanted nor clearly understood by the vast majority of people.

The question of the future of the automobile, after all, is not yet an objective question. It is, rather, almost purely subjective at this time.

LES Seems To Win

With some reluctance, we have concluded that the best course of action for the City Council at this time is approval of the ordinance authorizing Lincoln Electric System participation in the Fort Calhoun nuclear generation Station No. 2. We say this, basically, as a result of being unable to propose an effective alternative.

We believe that LES demands projections for Lincoln are accurate enough to rely upon. Thus, we believe that LES is going to have to provide substantially more power for customers in the next 10 years than is the case today.

Thus, there is no escape from the fact that LES will be required to find additional sources of electricity to sell. We cannot vouch for the figures LES uses in advancing the cause of the Fort Calhoun project and a coal-burning generation plant in Wyoming.

On the other hand, we cannot indict those figures come up with, nor can we alternate sources of energy ourselves.

As to Fort Calhoun, it should be remembered that the Lincoln City Council is not deciding whether that plant will be

We do not know what the ultimate outcome of the current gasoline situation will be. Natural events which turn the public from the private car to something else are one thing, but government edicts toward this end are another.

Those who believe otherwise, who believe in penalties for those who drive beyond a prescribed limit, who believe that the law should be used to change the public attitude, are simply overwhelmed with their own importance and enlightenment. The way of life in this nation, including transportation, is a product of industrial ingenuity and overall public attitudes and opinion and that's the way it should remain.

Thus, we may well put more environmental considerations into our final transportation mix, but transportation does not become totally subject to such considerations. We want to protect the environment, but we have to have an adequate system of transportation, too.

Such does not really solve many immediate problems but it does tend to put aside the fuzzy thinkers who can see nothing but either the environmental or transportation side of things.

built. Thus, the desirability of the source from an environmental point of view is not fundamental to the Lincoln decision.

The Lincoln question is: Assuming Fort Calhoun is built, should LES be in the position of a part-owner for power purchase purposes? Again, we find with LES.

Our reluctance in this matter stems partly from an historic suspicion of the original structuring of LES and its overall motivation since that time and partly from the dramatic increase in electric rates that we have had and will experience in the immediate future. Yet, Lincoln power rates are relatively low and power companies throughout the state and nation, public and private, have all had to face up to such rate increases.

While we are going to be paying through the nose for future electric needs, it is of utmost importance that Lincoln be able to meet its power demands. It seems that we might well risk this ability by denying LES Fort Calhoun participation and that risk is too great to take.

Foundation Assets Increase $1.3 Million

Assets of the University of Nebraska Foundation increased $1.3 million to a total of 23.5 million during the 1974-75 fiscal year, while donations totaled $2.2 million, down $800,000 from the previous year.

Reviewing the foundation's financial progress at the annual board meeting, President Harry R. Haynie said the decline in gifts was attributable mainly to the nation's "economic conditions and depressed stock market."

He noted a decrease of $100,000 in gifts from other foundations and a decline of $250,000 in bequests.

Benefits Drop $200,000

"Benefits turned over to the university totaled $2.1 million," Haynie said. "Although gifts dropped $800,000, the benefits only suffered a $200,000 decline."

Haynie said the foundation's true assets are in the neighborhood of $35 million.

"There are at least another $10 million in endowments being held by other fiduciary agents or subject to life-income tenants," he said.

Haynie said outstanding student loans as of June 30 totaled $219,193, up $50,600 from a year ago.

Drive To Be Studied

Paul J. Amen, chairman of the solicitation committee, told the board a special financial consultant will be asked to study whether a major fund-raising effort should be made.

Amen said he hoped the study would recommend a fund drive to raise from $20 million to $35 million over the next three to five years in addition to the $2 million to $3 million annually raised by the foundation.

Test To Find How Sound Building Is

Omaha (AP) — An engineering check will be made of the block long building that houses St. Joseph's Hospital to see if it can stand more years of usage.

Officials of the Creighton Omaha Regional Health Care Corp. announced plans to build a new hospital on the Creighton University campus and said much of St. Joseph's Hospital would be razed with only the newest sections being kept.

Now James M. Ensign, president of the corporation which operates St. Joseph, said officials have decided to see how structurally sound the entire building is and look for ways it might be used in the future.

"There is no reason to tear a building down because it is old," he said.

The oldest part of the building is 105 years old and the newest section is aged 24. The former school of nursing now used for clinics and offices, is 12 years old.

Ensign said future uses must be based on community needs and economic feasibility.

450 Brownies To Visit Wilber, Beatrice Sites

Four hundred and fifty Brownies and their leaders from southeastern Nebraska will open the Girl Scouts' year-long bicentennial observance Oct. 5 with visits to Homestead National Monument near Beatrice and to the Czech community of Wilber.

Five buses will leave from the Gateway Shopping Center at 11:00 a.m. Sunday, arriving at Homestead Monument at 12 noon where they will be hosted by the Brownie troops of Beatrice.

Mrs. Gen Olson, of Lincoln coordinator of the tour, said the Brownies will tour the national monument, to acquaint the Brownies with the Homestead Act of 1862.

Mayor Glenn W. Zajcek plans to rope off a downtown area in Wilber where the Beseda Dancers will perform and the Brownies will participate in polka dances during the afternoon.

Foundation Assets Increase $1.3 Million

Assets of the University of Nebraska Foundation increased $1.3 million to a total of 23.5 million during the 1974-75 fiscal year, while donations totaled $2.2 million, down $800,000 from the previous year.

Reviewing the foundation's financial progress at the annual board meeting, President Harry R. Haynie said the decline in gifts was attributable mainly to the nation's "economic conditions and depressed stock market."

He noted a decrease of $100,000 in gifts from other foundations and a decline of $250,000 in bequests.

Benefits Drop $200,000

"Benefits turned over to the university totaled $2.1 million," Haynie said. "Although gifts dropped $800,000, the benefits only suffered a $200,000 decline.

Haynie said the foundatin's true assets are in the neighborhood of $35 million.

"There are at least another $10 million in endowments being held by other fiduciary agents or subject to life-income tenants," he said.

Haynie said outstanding student loans as of June 30 totaled $219,193, up $50,600 from a year ago.

Drive To Be Studied

Paul J. Amen, chairman of the solicitation committee, told the board a special financial consultant will be asked to study whether a major fund-raising effort should be made.

Amen said he hoped the study would recommend a fund drive to raise from $20 million to $35 million over the next three to five years, in addition to the $2 million to $3 million annually raised by the foundation.

Test To Find How Sound Building Is

Omaha (AP) — An engineering check will be made of the block-long building that houses St. Joseph's Hospital to see if it can stand more years of usage.

Officials of the Creighton Omaha Regional Health Care Corp. announced plans to build a new hospital on the Creighton University campus and said much of St. Joseph Hospital would be razed, with only the newest sections being kept.

Now, James M. Ensign, president of the corporation which operates St. Joseph, said officials have decided to see how structurally sound the entire building is and look for ways it might be used in the future.

"There is no reason to tear a building down because it is old," he said.

The oldest part of the building is 105 years old and the newest section is aged 24. The former school of nursing, now used for clinics and offices, is 12 years old.

Ensign said future uses must be based on community needs and economic feasibility.

Caldwell Just Getting Acquainted

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor

Dr. William Caldwell, new head of the state's 4-H and rural youth programs, still has the name of his predecessor, Wes Antes, on his office door.

"I suppose I should change that sometime, but I'm not very concerned about it," he said. "I've been going to the State Fair, to the Ak-Sar-Ben show and getting acquainted with as many people as possible. People is really what this job is all about," he said.

Caldwell is pleased with what he has seen. "This is one fantastic community to live in. I see a balance in the competition with the cooperation aspects of the youth programs, and I've been very impressed with how clean the shows have been. Most shows of this size would be knee-deep in paper," he said.

Caldwell has some ideas about how to expand the 4-H program but is more interested in quality than in quantity. "The two can go together," he said.

"We seem to have a very good program in the cities and an excellent program in the rural areas, but we could use some improvement in the 400 small towns. Just think of what it would do for enrollment numbers if we added just one club in each Nebraska town," he said.

Caldwell would like to see more work in the young adult program area. "This is a difficult area, and some people find this age a threatening age to work with," he said.

But Caldwell says it is worth the effort. "Many young people from rural youth programs eventually become the county commissioner, a member of the 4-H council or extension board," he said.

Caldwell plans to work out a way to rotate staff into different jobs, on the theory that no job remains exciting unless it changes occasionally. "If you are in a program 10 years it can lose its excitement. Perhaps we can give the program a new face," he said.

Caldwell is convinced money for any kind of youth activity is well spent. "I read somewhere that it takes $30,000 to keep a kid in an institution. Keeping him in a 4-H club, scouting activity or something like it is much cheaper," he said.

"If a county agent, influences just one youngster a year to stay in school, he has paid his salary. You can be sure they do a lot better than that," he said.

Caldwell believes older kids who quit 4-H clubs do so because they aren't involved in the decision-making process in their clubs or because they aren't getting the volume of information they want from their club leaders.

"I think that one reason that livestock clubs, horse clubs and clothing clubs are more successful with older kids is that their leaders are able to provide them with more information about their projects," he said.

Caldwell thinks that too much emphasis has been placed on how to do things. "You can't give a person a receipt for life because the ingredients for life change. We work with values, attitudes, beliefs. Not a career because there are careers around today that didn't exist 10 years ago," he said.

Caldwell would like to find some way to make youngsters realize how lucky they are to be in the U.S. today. He would like to teach them history through experience.

"If they could experience harvesting a crop by hand, grinding their own flour, washing clothes in a tub with a wash board, it might give them an opportunity to evaluate what they have in today's world," he said.

Caldwell described the support for 4-H in Nebraska as tremendous. "I was really impressed with the financial support for the livestock shows," he said.

Support is the key for successful 4-H programs according to Caldwell. "There is a direct correlation between the projects that have support and enrollment. One problem is that to win the top trips you have to start in 4-H at an early age. We need to work out a system so a youngster who starts in club work when he is 14 or so has a chance at some kind of special award," he said.

What 4-H does for and to people is more important to Caldwell than raising a special calf. "The 4-H program has found a lot of kids who would have been dropouts and gotten them interested in staying in school. It is fantastic what one leader can do for a youngster," he said.

The United States made its first sale of tallow to the Soviet Union since 1965, 85 million pounds were sold during May and June of this year.

Egypt also imported tallow — more than Russia — buying 119 million pounds this year.

Cattle hide exports are up 28% in volume, but the value per hide dropped from $17.92 last year to $10.99 this year.

Pork exports jumped from $18.6 million last year to $67 million this year. That is kind of hard to believe with the nation's pork supply the smallest in 40 years.

It seems that the ban on grain sales to the Soviet Union by the President was more of an attempt to get grain already sold onto ships than an attempt to halt grain exports.

It is obvious to anyone that you can't sell grain that can't be shipped.

How real a long-term grain buying agreement with the Soviets will be remains to be seen. They are the world's largest wheat producer in a good year. They can be exporters in some years and must be importers in others.

An obvious answer is to build a lot of storage so they can keep the surpluses for the lean years. But that takes time and doesn't solve their present grain shortage.

The experts are saying there will be a small increase in meat production but the high prices of feed will keep it small.

Poultrymen can increase production fastest and there will be some increase in poultry meat, perhaps as much as 10%.

Beef production will also increase somewhat. However, it is doubtful much of that increase will come from the feedlot.

There has been some increase in placements and the number of feeder cattle increases seasonally. The prices are also going up which indicates some interest in expansion, but most observers claim it is short-lived.

Hog producers could expand a little, but the high price of grain offers a farmer a sure sale now. He will have to do a lot of hard work, spend a lot of money and haul a lot of manure to produce pork. Most likely he will decide to sell his grain to someone else foolish enough to work all winter to raise hogs or feed cattle.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor

Government intervention and an interagency quarrel between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the State Department threw the grain market into a mess right in the middle of harvest this week.

But while politicians argued and farmers fumed, grain traders shuffled in and out of Moscow and Eastern Europe making grain sales on an any origin basis.

This means their order can be filled with soybeans from the U.S., Brazil or Paraguay. They may load wheat from the U.S., Canada, Argentina or some other nation.

The big grain companies are not obligated to report such sales unless it is limited to U.S. grain. They could find themselves in big trouble, however, should the U.S. government adopt a policy to prohibit overseas sales.

Farmers and grain users will be in equally big trouble economically if the government doesn't soon come up with a decision on grain export problems. The debate is throwing the whole marketing system into a tizzy. Farmers already are deciding what to plant next year and putting on fertilizer for the 1976 crop to be eaten in 1977. Further delay will be disastrous to the world supply.

Uncertainty of supply drives grain prices up, uncertainty of demand drives prices down. We pretty well know what the grain supply is in this country, but we have no information on what we will be allowed to sell.

Breeders Plan To Keep 44% More Turkey Hens

Nebraska turkey producers expect to keep 44% more turkey breeder hens than last year to produce eggs for next year's turkey crop.

Nebraska will have 13,000 breeder turkey hens compared to 9,000 last year, but well below the 22,000 breeders on hand on Dec. 1, 1973.

Turkey breeder flock owners in 26 major producing states report they expect to have 2% fewer breeder hens in their flocks on Dec. 1 for the 1976 hatching season than they have had for the 1975 hatching year. Flock owners expect to decrease heavy breed flocks by 4% but increase light breed flocks 16% compared to a year ago.

The actual number of breeder hens kept for the 76 hatching season may vary from the report, depending on changes in the supply of feed, price of hatching eggs and prices received from turkeys during the next few months.

Statistics show that 52% of the surface area in Nebraska is rangeland.

Gross income from rangeland use, including livestock grazing, hunting, recreation and other uses is set at $600 million in Nebraska.

Total income from the livestock industry in the state is more than $1 billion on an annual basis.

Range Officials To Be Selected

Announcement of his appointment was made in the Nebraska Chapter, Society of Range Management newsletter which is edited by Larry A. Peterson of Stapleton, a former South Dakota State University range management specialist.

The Society of Range management is the prime contractor with the Old West Regional Commission to administer a two-year grant for $540,000.

Exon Says Farm Recovery To Help Treasury

By DON BEMAN

United Press International

Gov. J. J. Exon said Sunday that predicting when Nebraska's treasury woes will hit depends in large part on the extent, if any, of a recovery in the agricultural economy in general and on an upswing in export expectations in particular.

"We're in a critical period," Exon told UPI in an interview. "That's why we need an immediate lifting of the presidential embargo on exports."

Earlier, the Exon administration said the treasury would start running into so-called "cash flow" problems by March or April. By cash flow, the officials mean there just won't be enough actual hard cash on hand to meet spending obligations.

State Won't Be Broke

That doesn't mean the state will be broke. It means only that money isn't coming in fast enough to cover the expenditures as they are being made.

Exon said some persons feel that a substantial increase in feed grain prices, for example, would be the automatic solution to the state's economic problems.

He said it would be nice to see those prices pop up under a strong export-based market. But Nebraska's serious recession problems, Exon said, can be traced to the beef price freeze of the Nixon administration and that industry just hasn't recovered yet.

If grain prices went up too much, he said, then feeder profit incentive won't be there and recovery would again be blocked. In other words, the state's chief executive said, "everything is relative and there's no simple solution."

Administration Criticized

"And there can't be as long as there's an administration that says to farmers they must plant fence row to fence row and then puts a clamp on shipments overseas when the fence row to fence row crop comes in."

But, said Exon, there is an answer.

"The overall answer to this is that we've just got to develop some kind of a national policy for agriculture that eliminates the extremes," he said, "and so far it is apparent that this administration doesn't have the wherewithal to do that."

Other nations, Exon noted, have used their production powers to significant domestic economy advantage. He said a prime example are the oil producing and exporting nations.

Exon Cites OPEC

In the case of the United States, he said, agricultural products could be used the same way the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries use their oil. Exon said the strength of the U.S. agricultural production line is unmatched in the world.

So far, Exon said, the United States has "never developed or attempted to develop agriculture as the economic control factor that the OPEC nations have with their oil."

"But unless we do use what I call 'agri-power', there isn't going to be either a healthy agricultural economy or a national economy."

As to how the immediate picture looks on farm price gains and production policy evolution, the governor said there has been an encouraging note over the weekend and he said he's pleased with one effort in particular.

"I'm pleased that the administration is negotiating with the Russians on future food purchases so we can better plan production here in this country to meet our own needs and the export needs," he said.

Six Persons Die In Road Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Six persons died in Nebraska traffic accidents over the weekend, boosting the state total for the year to 273, compared with 289 a year ago.

The state patrol said Tory Jane Sackschewsky, 16, of York died Sunday in a one-car crash about a mile south and two miles east of York on a county road.

Officers said the car was northbound when it went off a dead-end road and overturned. The victim was identified as the driver.

Mrs. Lillian Lueders, of Wayne, was killed Sunday in a one-car accident on Hwy. 35 about five miles east of Wayne. Authorities said Mrs. Lueders apparently lost control of her car while attempting to pass a car that was turning onto a side road. Mrs. Lueders was thrown out of the car, which rolled over and came to rest on its side.

Karen Knudsen, 17, of Valentine died in an Omaha hospital Saturday of injuries suffered last Sunday night in a one-car crash about a mile east of Valentine on Highway 12.

The Cherry County sheriff's office said the car was driven by Robert Roundy of Valentine. They said the car apparently went out of control and slid backward into a ditch.

Two 17-year-old Albion residents died in a three-vehicle accident Saturday.

The State Patrol said the victims of the accident on Hwy. 14 eight-tenths of a mile north of Albion were James Beierman and Nancy Karges, both 17.

Five other persons were injured in the mishap and the patrol said they were in fair condition at an Albion hospital.

The report said all three vehicles involved were going south on the highway. Troopers said the car driven by Beierman, in which the Karges girl was a passenger, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Robert Borer, 20, of Albion.

The patrol said a car driven by Scott Parli, 17, of Albion then ran into the left side of the Beierman auto.

Authorities said Patrick McQuillan, 20, of Omaha was killed in a two vehicle mishap early Saturday at 96th and L Sts. in Omaha.

Officers said McQuillan was in a car which was attempting to make a turn at the time of the accident. David Pasch, 22, of Elkhorn, in the car with McQuillan, was injured, along with those in the other car — Leo Anstey, 38, of Ralston and his nephew, Berry Anstey, 24, of Great Falls, Mont.

Bison Skull Found At Gibbon

Gibbon — While lowering a gas line in Gibbon, Kansas-Nebraska Gas Co. crewmen discovered the skull of a bison. A University of Nebraska paleontologist estimated the nearly-intact bison skull to be from 500 to 1,000 years old. When restored and preserved, the skull will be returned to Gibbon and exhibited in the future Heritage Center, a Bicentennial project at Gibbon.

Aussies Visit Ravenna Cheese Plant

Ravenna — Three young girls from Melbourne, Australia, were recent visitors at the Ravenna cheese plant, watching the process of making cheese. The girls were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Maloley of Lexington. Traveling by bus and backpacking, the girls will leave for their homeland by plane from Vancouver.

Schuyler Will Host CHEANN

Schuyler — The annual meeting of the board of directors for the Community Health Education Association of Northeast Nebraska will be held Friday at the Schuyler Senior Citizen's home here. CHEANN, a fully funded project of the Nebraska regional medical program, has just completed its first year of operation.

Kearney (AP) — New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr. will be the featured speaker at a $10 per plate Central Nebraska GOP fund-raising dinner in Kearney Oct. 17. The state GOP Executive Committee meeting is scheduled to meet the same day, and the Central Committee will meet the next day.

Ag Achievement Hall To Honor Trio

The Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement will honor three Nebraska agricultural leaders for their achievements and contributions at a dinner in Lincoln Oct. 22. The trio, who were longtime contemporaries at the University of Nebraska, are Dr. Elvin E. Frolik, former dean of the NU College of Agriculture; George S. Round, longtime director of the NU Department of Public Relations; and E. W. Janike, former NU dean of Extension.

Red Cloud FFA Team Wins Meet

Loup City — In the Area V range judging contest held in Sherman County, the Red Cloud FFA team walked off with top honors in the FFA division. Winning first in the 4-H division was the Custer County 4-H team. Deb Collins of Broken Bow was top FFA individual scorer, while Ed Anderson of Custer County was first place individual 4-H winner.

Some 100 CB Operators In Violation Of FCC Rules

Omaha (AP) — More than 100 citizen band radio operators in greater Omaha have been found violating Federal Communications Commission regulations, officials said.

They said the violators could be fined and or imprisoned, depending on the severity of the offense.

Violations ranged from unlicensed operators to operating radios with too much power or on unauthorized frequencies.

The spokesmen said FCC officials will notify operators of the violations within the next few days for possible legal action. Further investigation is likely if complaints of violations continue.

Paul Schaer, assistant manager of World Radio at the Westroads Shopping Center and a CB operator, estimated earlier this year that there could be as many as 5,000 CB operators locally.

Graham Gets 20 Years For Killing

Omaha (AP) — District Judge John Grant Friday sentenced Byron William Graham, 30, of Omaha to 20 years in prison in the Aug. 2 shooting death of Theodore C. Tague.

Graham pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

The body of Tague, 43, of Omaha, was found in a field in the area of 20th and Ogden Sts.

Omaha Girl Shot At Birthday Party

Omaha (AP) — The celebration of an 18th birthday ended in tragedy as Debbie Carter, 18, was shot fatally by unknown persons through the window of a basement apartment, police said.

The group of about 26 persons had assembled to celebrate the 18th birthday of Miss Carter's roommate, Sofia Monjarez. Someone had just told a joke and then the group heard "firecrackers."

Debbie lay bleeding on the floor. She was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and then taken to a hospital, where she died shortly after arrival Saturday night.

"We thought someone threw firecrackers," Miss Monjarez said. "Somebody called the police. We shut off the lights and all got down on the floor."

Police said the apartment was hit by about six bullets.

"She was real friendly," Miss Monjarez said of her dead roommate, with whom she had been friends since the eighth grade in Omaha.

Police said they were looking for four youths.

Ronnie Brezenski, 27, who was coming to the party late, said he saw a copper-colored van stop and two youths run through the yard to the apartment window.

He said he heard firecrackers and the two ran back to the van, which made a U-turn and headed south from the scene. He said he saw two other youths in the van.

"I thought it was somebody going to the party. I thought they were going up to the window to razz somebody," he said. "But then I went inside and saw Debbie lying there."

Midlands' Economy Said To Be Improving

By The Associated Press

The economy of the Midlands, which was ailing seriously at the beginning of the year, appeared Sunday to be on the mend.

Donald R. Connell, assistant professor of economics at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, said the Midlands economy has paralleled the national business downturn more closely the last several months than during previous recessions.

"It shows the nation's economy is becoming more and more integrated," Connell said. "More firms in this region are making and selling goods nationally. We can no longer expect to be an island economy unto ourselves."

Connell said there are good national economic signs: Industrial production, on the slide for many months, is turning up slightly, and surveys show consumer buying confidence is improving.

A major economic bright spot is agriculture, with farmers receiving high grain prices. Livestock feeders have been selling hogs and cattle at record or near record levels the past few months.

But while some farmers are "riding pretty high," the good times are not universal, according to Dr. Glen Vollmar, chairman of the agricultural economics department at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Ranchers still are plagued by low calf prices. And while the drought was not as widespread as 1974, he said some farmers have lost a second consecutive crop due to dry weather.

Nebraska's August unemployment rate was 5.2%, compared to a high of 6.8% in February. The figure for August was well up from the 3.5% in August of 1974.

Omaha's unemployment rate rose from 7.6% in July to 7.9% in August, primarily due to layoffs by three or four major firms, spokesmen said.

Sam Short, president of the Omaha Central Labor Union, said the construction situation appears brighter than manufacturing. He said many building trades unions, which experienced steep unemployment earlier in 1975, have most of their members back to work.

Stapleton (AP)—Securing of a regional coordinator, Nebraska state coordinator and selection of a 12-member advisory board are the latest efforts in implementing a regional range program involving Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Dan Bose, a Nebraska native who recently received his master's degree from Colorado State University, will be headquartered at the University of Nebraska Panhandle Station at Scottsbluff to effect the plans.

Caldwell Just Getting Acquainted

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Dr. William Caldwell, new head of the state's 4-H and rural youth programs, still has the name of his predecessor, Wes Antes, on his office door.

"I suppose I should change that sometime, but I'm not very concerned about it," he said.

"I've been going to the State Fair, to the Ak-Sar-Ben show and getting acquainted with as many people as possible. People is really what this job is all about," he said.

Caldwell is pleased with what he has seen. "This is one fantastic community to live in. I see a balance in the competition with the cooperation aspects of the youth programs, and I've been very impressed with how clean the shows have been. Most shows of this size would be knee-deep in paper," he said.

Caldwell has some ideas about how to expand the 4-H program but is more interested in quality than in quantity. "The two can go together," he said.

"We seem to have a very good program in the cities and an excellent program in the rural areas, but we could use some improvement in the 400 small towns. Just think of what it would do for enrollment numbers if we added just one club in each Nebraska town," he said.

Caldwell would like to see more work in the young adult program area. "This is a difficult area, and some people find this age a threatening age to work with," he said.

But Caldwell says it is worth the effort. "Many young people from rural youth programs eventually become the county commissioner, a member of the 4-H council or extension board," he said.

Caldwell plans to work out a way to rotate staff into different jobs, on the theory that no job remains exciting unless it changes occasionally. "If you are in a program 10 years it can lose its excitement. Perhaps we can give the program a new face," he said.

Caldwell is convinced money for any kind of youth activity is well spent. "I read somewhere that it takes $30,000 to keep a kid in an institution. Keeping him in a 4-H club, scouting activity or something like it is much cheaper," he said.

"If a county agent, influences just one youngster a year to stay in school, he has paid his salary. You can be sure they do a lot better than that," he said.

Caldwell believes older kids who quit 4-H clubs do so because they aren't involved in the decision-making process in their clubs or because they aren't getting the volume of information they want from their club leaders.

"I think that one reason that livestock clubs, horse clubs and clothing clubs are more successful with older kids is that their leaders are able to provide them with more information about their projects," he said.

Caldwell thinks that too much emphasis has been placed on how to do things. "You can't give a person a receipt for life because the ingredients for life change. We work with values, attitudes, beliefs. Not a career because there are careers around today that didn't exist 10 years ago," he said.

Caldwell would like to find some way to make youngsters realize how lucky they are to be in the U.S. today. He would like to teach them history through experience.

"If they could experience harvesting a crop by hand, grinding their own flour, washing clothes in a tub with a wash board, it might give them an opportunity to evaluate what they have in today's world," he said.

Caldwell described the support for 4-H in Nebraska as tremendous. "I was really impressed with the financial support for the livestock shows," he said.

Support is the key for successful 4-H programs according to Caldwell. "There is a direct correlation between the projects that have support and enrollment. One problem is that to win the top trips you have to start in 4-H at an early age. We need to work out a system so a youngster who starts in club work when he is 14 or so has a chance at some kind of special award," he said.

What 4-H does for and to people is more important to Caldwell than raising a special calf. "The 4-H program has found a lot of kids who would have been dropouts and gotten them interested in staying in school. It is fantastic what one leader can do for a youngster," he said.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The United States made its first sale of tallow to the Soviet Union since 1965, 85 million pounds were sold during May and June of this year.

Egypt also imported tallow — more than Russia — buying 119 million pounds this year.

Cattle hide exports are up 28% in volume, but the value per hide dropped from $17.92 last year to $10.99 this year.

Pork exports jumped from $18.6 million last year to $67 million this year. That is kind of hard to believe with the nation's pork supply the smallest in 40 years.

It seems that the ban on grain sales to the Soviet Union by the President was more of an attempt to get grain already sold onto ships than an attempt to halt grain exports.

It is obvious to anyone that you can't sell grain that can't be shipped.

How real a long-term grain buying agreement with the Soviets will be remains to be seen. They are the world's largest wheat producer in a good year. They can be exporters in some years and must be importers in others.

An obvious answer is to build a lot of storage so they can keep the surpluses for the lean years. But that takes time and doesn't solve their present grain shortage.

The experts are saying there will be a small increase in meat production but the high prices of feed will keep it small.

Poultrymen can increase production fastest and there will be some increase in poultry meat, perhaps as much as 10%.

Beef production will also increase somewhat. However, it is doubtful much of that increase will come from the feedlot.

There has been some increase in placements and the number of feeder cattle increases seasonally. The prices are also going up which indicates some interest in expansion, but most observers claim it is short-lived.

Hog producers could expand a little, but the high price of grain offers a farmer a sure sale now. He will have to do a lot of hard work, spend a lot of money and haul a lot of manure to produce pork. Most likely he will decide to sell his grain to someone else foolish enough to work all winter to raise hogs or feed cattle.

There is good reason to believe that we will have a larger carryover of feed grain at the end of the 1976 crop season than this year. This argues for some increase in the production of livestock as farmers clean bins prior to harvest.

Consumers seem to be buying smaller amounts of meat and larger amounts of things like dried beans, wheat products and some meat substitutes. The big question for livestock producers is, will people return to meat if prices drop?

There have been a series of stories carried in the nation's papers about the difficulties of going back to horse-powered agriculture.

The stories are gleaned from a report on horse agriculture that suggests we would have to put half our land back into horse feed if we got rid of the tractors.

The report overlooks the real reason that farmers made the switch to tractors in the first place.

The horse has to be fed and cared for even when he isn't working. He has to be harnessed before being hitched to a wagon or plow. The tractor, on the other hand, requires an oil change and maintenance, but at the farmer's convenience.

To start a tractor today requires turning a key. To start up a horse you have to bring him from the pasture, feed him some oats, harness him, do your work, then remove the harness and probably clean up the mess he made in the barn.

That darn gas monster is just too convenient.

I do think there are places on a farm today for a good team, if a farmer is willing to put up with the extra work.

The covered wagon exhibited at the State Fair this year had some improvements that an old wagon master would have loved. Rubber tires, roller bearings and other modern improvements would greatly increase the power of horses if engineers would take the return to horse power seriously.

There are a lot of pleasure horses in the country that could be replaced with work horses. It would take years to breed an adequate supply of horses and perhaps even longer to train people to drive them. Driving a six-horse hitch requires a lot more skill than driving a car, and a lot more strength in your arms than you need for power steering.

Exon Says Farm Recovery To Help Treasury

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Gov. J. J. Exon said Sunday that predicting when Nebraska's treasury woes will hit depends in large part on the extent, if any, of a recovery in the agricultural economy in general and on an upswing in export expectations in particular.

"We're in a critical period," Exon told UPI in an interview. "That's why we need an immediate lifting of the presidential embargo on exports."

Earlier, the Exon administration said the treasury would start running into so-called "cash flow" problems by March or April. By cash flow, the officials mean there just won't be enough actual hard cash on hand to meet spending obligations.

State Won't Be Broke

That doesn't mean the state will be broke. It means only that money isn't coming in fast enough to cover the expenditures as they are being made.

Exon said some persons feel that a substantial increase in feed grain prices, for example, would be the automatic solution to the state's economic problems.

He said it would be nice to see those prices pop up under a strong export-based market. But Nebraska's serious recession problems, Exon said, can be traced to the beef price freeze of the Nixon administration and that industry just hasn't recovered yet.

If grain prices went up too much, he said, then feeder profit incentive won't be there and recovery would again be blocked. In other words, the state's chief executive said, "everything is relative and there's no simple solution."

Administration Criticized

"And there can't be as long as there's an administration that says to farmers they must plant fence row to fence row and then puts a clamp on shipments overseas when the fence row to fence row crop comes in."

But, said Exon, there is an answer.

"The overall answer to this is that we've just got to develop some kind of a national policy for agriculture that eliminates the extremes," he said, "and so far it is apparent that this administration doesn't have the wherewithal to do that."

Other nations, Exon noted, have used their production powers to significant domestic economy advantage. He said a prime example are the oil producing and exporting nations.

Exon Cites OPEC

In the case of the United States, he said, agricultural products could be used the same way the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries use their oil. Exon said the strength of the U.S. agricultural production line is unmatched in the world.

So far, Exon said, the United States has "never developed or attempted to develop agriculture as the economic control factor that the OPEC nations have with their oil."

"But unless we do use what I call 'agri-power', there isn't going to be either a healthy agricultural economy or a national economy."

As to how the immediate picture looks on farm price gains and production policy evolution, the governor said there has been an encouraging note over the weekend and he said he's pleased with one effort in particular.

"I'm pleased that the administration is negotiating with the Russians on future food purchases so we can better plan production here in this country to meet our own needs and the export needs," he said.

Six Persons Die In Road Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Six persons died in Nebraska traffic accidents over the weekend, boosting the state total for the year to 273, compared with 289 a year ago.

The state Patrol said Tory Jane Sackschewsky, 16, of York died Sunday in a one-car crash about a mile south and two miles east of York on a county road.

Officers said the car was northbound when it went off a dead-end road and overturned. The victim was identified as the driver.

Mrs. Lillian Lueders, of Wayne, was killed Sunday in a one-car accident on Hwy. 35 about five miles east of Wayne. Authorities said Mrs. Lueders apparently lost control of her car while attempting to pass a car that was turning onto a side road. Mrs. Lueders was thrown out of the car, which rolled over and came to rest on its side.

Karen Knudsen, 17, of Valentine died in an Omaha hospital Saturday of injuries suffered last Sunday night in a one-car crash about a mile east of Valentine on Highway 12.

The Cherry County sheriff's office said the car was driven by Robert Roundy of Valentine. They said the car apparently went out of control and slid backward into a ditch.

Two 17-year-old Albion residents died in a three-vehicle accident Saturday.

The State Patrol said the victims of the accident on Hwy. 14 eight-tenths of a mile north of Albion were James Beierman and Nancy Karges, both 17.

Five other persons were injured in the mishap and the patrol said they were in fair condition at an Albion hospital.

The report said all three vehicles involved were going south on the highway. Troopers said the car driven by Beierman, in which the Karges girl was a passenger, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Robert Borer, 20, of Albion.

The patrol said a car driven by Scott Parli, 17, of Albion then ran into the left side of the Beierman auto.

Authorities said Patrick McQuillan, 20, of Omaha was killed in a two vehicle mishap early Saturday at 96th and L Sts. in Omaha.

Officers said McQuillan was in a car which was attempting to make a turn at the time of the accident. David Pasch, 22, of Elkhorn, in the car with McQuillan, was injured, along with those in the other car — Leo Anstey, 38, of Ralston and his nephew, Berry Anstey, 24, of Great Falls, Mont.

Other first place winners were: Nancy Eaken of Bellevue, Dried Flowers; Margaret Truistdale of Blair, Fresh Flowers; Mike Cohen of North Platte, Patio Arrangement; Sue Carr of Omaha, Speedy Recovery.

Elected to the society's board of directors were Robert Sass of Hastings, David Ederer of Omaha, and Alan Jared of North Platte.

Bison Skull Found At Gibbon

Gibbon — While lowering a gas line in Gibbon, Kansas-Nebraska Gas Co. crewmen discovered the skull of a bison. A University of Nebraska paleontologist estimated the nearly-intact bison skull to be from 500 to 1,000 years old. When restored and preserved, the skull will be returned to Gibbon and exhibited in the future Heritage Center, a Bicentennial project at Gibbon.

Aussies Visit Ravenna Cheese Plant

Some 100 CB Operators In Violation Of FCC Rules

Omaha (AP) — More than 100 citizen band radio operators in greater Omaha have been found violating Federal Communications Commission regulations, officials said.

They said the violators could be fined and/or imprisoned, depending on the severity of the offense.

Violations ranged from unlicensed operators to operating radios with too much power or on unauthorized frequencies.

The spokesmen said FCC officials will notify operators of the violations within the next few days for possible legal action. Further investigation is likely if complaints of violations continue.

Paul Schaefer, assistant manager of World Radio at the Westroads Shopping Center and a CB operator, estimated earlier this year that there could be as many as 5,000 CB operators locally.

Graham Gets 20 Years For Killing

Omaha (AP) — District Judge John Grant Friday sentenced Byron William Graham, 30, of Omaha to 20 years in prison in the Aug. 2 shooting death of Theodore C. Tague.

Graham pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

The body of Tague, 43, of Omaha, was found in a field in the area of 20th and Ogden Sts.

Omaha Girl Shot At Birthday Party

Omaha (AP) — The celebration of an 18th birthday ended in tragedy as Debbie Carter, 18, was shot fatally by unknown persons through the window of a basement apartment, police said.

The group of about 20 persons had assembled to celebrate the 18th birthday of Miss Carter's roommate, Sofia Monjarez. Someone had just told a joke and then the group heard "firecrackers."

Debbie lay bleeding on the floor. She was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and then taken to a hospital, where she died shortly after arrival Saturday night.

"We thought someone threw firecrackers," Miss Monjarez said. "Somebody called the police. We shut off the lights and all got down on the floor."

Police said the apartment was hit by about six bullets.

"She was real friendly," Miss Monjarez said of her dead roommate, with whom she had been friends since the eighth grade in Omaha.

Police said they were looking for four youths.

Ronnie Brezenski, 27, who was coming to the party late, said he saw a copper-colored van stop and two youths run through the yard to the apartment window.

He said he heard firecrackers and the two ran back to the van, which made a U-turn and headed south from the scene. He said he saw two other youths in the van.

"I thought it was somebody going to the party. I thought they were going up to the window to razz somebody," he said. "But then I went inside and saw Debbie lying there."

Midlands' Economy Said To Be Improving

By The Associated Press
The economy of the Midlands, which was ailing seriously at the beginning of the year, appeared Sunday to be on the mend.

Donald R. Connell, assistant professor of economics at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, said the Midlands economy has paralleled the national business downturn more closely the last several months than during previous recessions.

"It shows the nation's economy is becoming more and more integrated," Connell said. "More firms in this region are making and selling goods nationally. We can no longer expect to be an island economy unto ourselves."

Connell said there are good national economic signs: Industrial production, on the slide for many months, is turning up slightly, and surveys show consumer buying confidence is improving.

A major economic bright spot is agriculture, with farmers receiving high grain prices. Livestock feeders have been selling hogs and cattle at record or near record levels the past few months.

But while some farmers are "riding pretty high," the good times are not universal, according to Dr. Glen Vollmar, chairman of the agricultural economics department at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Ranchers still are plagued by low calf prices. And while the drought was not as widespread as 1974, he said some farmers have lost a second consecutive crop due to dry weather.

Nebraska's August unemployment rate was 5.2%, compared to a high of 6.8% in February. The figure for August was well up from the 3.5% in August of 1974.

Omaha's unemployment rate rose from 7.6% in July to 7.9% in August, primarily due to layoffs by three or four major firms, spokesmen said.

Sam Short, president of the Omaha Central Labor Union, said the construction situation appears brighter than manufacturing. He said many building trades unions, which experienced steep unemployment earlier in 1975, have most of their members back to work.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Government intervention and an interagency quarrel between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the State Department threw the grain market into a mess right in the middle of harvest this week.

But while politicians argued and farmers fumed, grain traders shuffled in and out of Moscow and Eastern Europe making grain sales on any origin basis.

This means their order can be filled with soybeans from the U.S., Brazil or Paraguay. They may load wheat from the U.S., Canada, Argentina or some other nation.

The big grain companies are not obligated to report such sales unless it is limited to U.S. grain. They could find themselves in big trouble, however, should the U.S. government adopt a policy to prohibit overseas sales.

Farmers and grain users will be in equally big trouble economically if the government doesn't soon come up with a decision on grain export problems. The debate is throwing the whole marketing system into a tizzy. Farmers already are deciding what to plant next year and putting on fertilizer for the 1976 crop to be eaten in 1977. Further delay will be disastrous to the world supply.

Uncertainty of supply drives grain prices up, uncertainty of demand drives prices down. We pretty well know what the grain supply is in this country, but we have no information on what we will be allowed to sell.

Breeders Plan To Keep 44% More Turkey Hens

Nebraska turkey producers expect to keep 44% more turkey breeder hens than last year to produce eggs for next year's turkey crop.

Nebraska will have 13,000 breeder turkey hens compared to 9,000 last year, but well below the 22,000 breeders on hand on Dec. 1, 1973.

Turkey breeder flock owners in 26 major producing states report they expect to have 2% fewer breeder hens in their flocks on Dec. 1 for the 1976 hatching season than they have had for the 1975 hatching year.

Flock owners expect to decrease heavy breed flocks by 4% but increase light breed flocks 16% compared to a year ago.

The actual number of breeder hens kept for the 76 hatching season may vary from the report, depending on changes in the supply of feed, price of hatching eggs and prices received from turkeys during the next few months.

Range Officials To Be Selected

Announcement of his appointment was made in the Nebraska Chapter, Society of Range Management newsletter which is edited by Larry A. Peterson of Stapleton, a former South Dakota State University range management specialist.

The Society of Range management is the prime contractor with the Old West Regional Commission to administer a two-year grant for $540,000.

Seventy per cent of the total area in the states involved is rangeland and 86% of strippable coal resources lie under these rangelands.

Statistics show that 52% of the surface area in Nebraska is rangeland.

Gross income from rangeland use, including livestock grazing, hunting, recreation and other uses is set at $600 million in Nebraska.

Total income from the livestock industry in the state is more than $1 billion on an annual basis.

Poll: Kissinger's Job Rating Shoots Up

By LOUIS HARRIS

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's job rating has shot up to 63-31% positive in the wake of his successful arrangement of a first-step agreement between Egypt and Israel.

Specifically, on the key dimension of "working to achieve a lasting peace in the Middle East," Kissinger's standing has risen from only 48% positive last May to a current 61% positive. It is significant, however, that this cross section gave President Ford no better than a 47-44% negative on his role in the peace effort.

Earlier this month, the Harris Survey asked a national cross section of 1,497 adults:

"How would you rate the job Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is doing — excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

KISSINGER JOB RATING TREND

	Positive	Negative	Not Sure
Sept., 1975	63	31	6
Aug.	56	40	4
May	48	50	2
April	48	50	2
March	48	50	2
Dec., 1974	48	50	2
July	48	50	2
May	48	50	2

Although Kissinger's current rating is still far below the record 85-10% positive he received in spring 1974, these results signal a turnaround in the secretary of state's popularity after a long slide. He now evokes more confidence from the public than does any other member of the Ford administration, including the President.

Along with the dramatic rise in Kissinger's overall rating, his standing has improved on a number of key dimensions:

—On working for peace in the world, Kissinger receives a 68-26% positive rating, which is up four points in the past month.

Louis Harris Rise Dramatic

—On handling relations with Russia, the secretary has a 59-32% positive rating, which is up from the 49-36% positive marks given him in May.

—On developing relations with Communist China, Kissinger is rated 55-32% positive, which is up from the 50-35% positive standing he had in May.

—Even on negotiating an end to the Vietnam War — a controversial chapter in the secretary's history of personal diplomacy — the public gives him a 54-37% positive rating, which is up from the narrow 48-45% he received in August of this year.

—On handling relations with Western allies, Kissinger has a highly positive, 53-35% rating.

In three areas, however, Secretary Kissinger has less than majority backing:

—By 49-38%, a plurality expresses confidence in his efforts to negotiate a new arms-control agreement with the Russians, which represents a sharp rise from the narrow 42-41% support given him on arms control only last month.

—By 42-39%, a close plurality gives him a positive rating on handling the Cyprus situation. This latest result marks a turnaround from the 43-34% negative rating accorded him on the disputed Cyprus situation in August.

—On his handling of relations with Congress, Kissinger still comes up with negative marks, but only by a narrow 44-43% margin. This is a significant improvement over the 48-49% negative standing he had on this pivotal dimension only last month.

This change for the better is clearly due to Kissinger's decision to seek the advice and consent of Congress on such matters as stationing American technicians in the Sinai, rather than drawing a battle line with the legislators, as he had done before.

Of course, Kissinger has a long way to go to get congressional approval of American commitments in the Middle East agreements, particularly the sizable sums of aid pledged to both the Israelis and the Egyptians. But for the moment, the secretary of state is riding high again. Ironically, little of the Kissinger gains among the public appear to have rubbed off on his boss, President Ford. And in 1976, it will be Ford, rather than Kissinger, who will be running in the presidential election.

Sexual Happiness, Firm Religion Linked ... U.S. Women Surveyed

NEW YORK (AP) — A consistent link between sexual happiness and firm religious belief was a key finding of a recent large-scale survey among American women.

The results ran counter to a frequently voiced modern assumption that religious convictions and disciplines tend to block sexual fulfillment.

Instead, they were found to increase it.

"Sexual satisfaction is related significantly to religious belief," says the report on a massive research project conducted by Redbook magazine, involving analysis of replies to questionnaires by 18,349 women.

"With notable consistency, the greater the intensity of a woman's religious convictions, the likelier she is to be highly satisfied with sexual pleasures in marriage."

While the study turned up various other factors, such as that 90 per cent of younger women under 25 have had premarital intercourse, half of them in connection with smoking marijuana, data indicating religion enhanced sexual satisfaction applied at all age levels.

Women describing themselves as "strongly religious" were the most likely to regard their sex lives as "good" or "very good" — 75 per cent of them, compared to 68 per cent of "moderately religious" wives who felt that way.

A smaller portion of the "not religious" women — 63 per cent — considered their sex lives satisfactory.

"This tendency exists among women of all ages," says the report by sociologist Robert J. Levin in the magazine's September issue.

Moreover, the highly religious women were more likely to be content with the frequency of sexual intercourse, and to be more likely to reach orgasmic climax than nonreligious wives. "The strongly religious woman seems to be even more responsive than other women her age," the report says.

Even though the nonreligious wives were most discontent with their sex lives, they also were most apt to complain that intercourse was not frequent enough. This was the case although the frequency was about the same for both groups, averaging 12 times a month for wives under 25, and with declining frequency in older age brackets.

Another difference that showed up was that religious women are more likely to discuss intimate sexual matters with their husbands, and also more likely to take an active part in love-making than are non-religious wives.

"Communication between strongly religious women and their husbands is, in every age group, substantially above average, while communication between nonreligious women and their husbands is below average," the report says.

"The fundamental difference that distinguished the non-religious from the strongly religious woman is that the non-religious woman is far more likely to be dissatisfied with every aspect of life," the report adds.

"By a striking margin she is less likely to describe herself as 'happy most of the time,' less likely to rate her marriage as 'very good,' less likely to say that the frequency of intercourse is 'about right' — and less likely to be orgasmic 'all the time' or 'most of the time.'"

What's Yamaha's Method
What's the secret behind the great popularity of Yamaha organ lessons . . . the simple fact that they're so enjoyable.
Yamaha's teaching method is a perfectly natural one. It works with the single most important musical resource each of us have. Our ears.
Essentially music is a hearing skill. To enjoy music our hearing skills have to grow. Ear training is the best way of stimulating that growth, and everything we do is directed towards it.
This is the same Yamaha teaching method that is sweeping the country. Now available in Lincoln exclusively at Thomsen Piano & Organ.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplana

San Francisco—
"Washington at Valley Forge
"twas bitter cold then up spoke George,
"Said: "Vo-do-de-o-do . . ."

Guitar weather around here. It's the age of nostalgia say the people who design clothes, music and magazine articles: "People are inclined to look back on 'the good old days,' forgetting that those days brought us bootlegging, gangsters and the Depression."

The good old days are good because they are over. I keep a few pages of sheet music around when I want to waltz down memory lane. Get out the guitar and turn on a little soulful stuff.

"Take your finger out of your mouth
"I want a kiss from you . . ."

The children said: "Let's go outside. The Cap'n's at the guitar again."

OK. OK. It's their loss. That's the way I look at it. Dum-dum-dum. (Look at that man pick the gee-tar!)

When I was swinging on a gate, Coolidge was in the White House. They called him "Silent Cal." Presidents get names hung on them — Herbert Hoover was "The Great Engineer."

Too early for a title to be hung on President Ford. The way things went in California he may become known as "The Clay Pigeon." If I was getting that many near misses I'd get out of the president business.

These are desperate times for politicians.

Whatever happened to turning off lights to save money and energy? Lyndon Johnson did that at the White House.

He had a pair of daughters and was immediately understood by fathers of the nation who scream: "Turn off the lights when you leave your room!"

(They turn off the lights. When you go in the room you find they left the TV running without sound.)

When President Johnson turned off the lights — "Ladybird, where did I put the flashlight?" — so did the secretary of defense.

Before that the Pentagon had 8,000 lighted windows showing our flag was still there. (Or else the Chiefs of Staff were on over-time.)

The defense secretary sent down a memo. And 8,000 windows went dark. No telling how much it saved but it must have been a bundle.

Farm Bureau Plans Rallies

The Nebraska Farm Bureau said Friday it would hold rallies Monday in Ogallala, Norfolk, Kearney and Lincoln as part of a nationwide effort to get President Ford to end the "Wedding Bells Are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine." That was the nostalgic year of 1949. Rudy Vallee was singing "I'm Just A Vagabond Lover" through a megaphone.

In that good old year (good for wine, bad for men) the profit melted in Wall Street. Brokers took a Brodie out of high windows.

Daring young boys bought the daring "Captain Billy's Whiz Bang" and hid it in the closet. College Humor published a bunch of two-line jokes: "Who was that lady I saw you with last night?"

Looking back on those nostalgic years I can't seem to dredge up anything worth sighing over.

I said to the children: "Turn off one of those lights. I didn't use two lights to do my homework. Abraham Lincoln did his homework by fire light. On the back of a shovel."

But they only said: "The Cap'n's taking in sail. He'll be at his elevenes early today."

The admissions were made in documents filed with the Securities and Exchange.

moratorium on grain export sales.

The farm bureau said those attending the meetings will be asked to write hand-written letters to be delivered to President Ford Wednesday.

Nebraska Farm Bureau President John Klinker said, "nationally, agriculture has produced one of the largest crops in history. The question is simply: will we have unrestricted access to domestic and foreign markets?"

Leave It To Sister To Decide On Burial

DEAR ABBY: My sister, Jane, was widowed after 45 years of marriage to Joe Smith. When Joe died, she bought a double plot with a big single grave stone with "SMITH" across it. She put his name on one side of it, plus the date of his birth and date of his death. The other side was for her when her time came.

Well, she ups and marries Chester Lind, who was never married before. Chester has expressed his wish to be buried side by side with my sister, Jane, and he has two plots to accommodate them in his family gravesite.

My sister is no longer a Smith, so how can she be buried with Joe Smith in the Smith family plot even if she wanted to?

How is a problem like this handled?

CONFUSED
DEAR CONFUSED: It's up to your sister to make her wishes known soon. If she wants to be laid to rest beside her first husband, she should so advise her present husband. Her marker would then read, "JANE SMITH LIND." If she doesn't make her wishes known, my guess is that if she outlives Chester, she'll join the Smiths. If no, Chester will bury her with the Linds.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for the Sunday school teacher who has a discipline problem with the pastor's 6-year-old son and doesn't know what to do. Being a pastor myself, I know that every Tom, Dick and Harry threaten to quit the church if they don't get their way.

I've heard everything from, "If my daughter doesn't get to play the organ," to, "if my grandfather doesn't get to preach his own funeral service, I am going to quit this church!"

dear abby

When anyone tries to blackmail me in this manner, I simply get out my pen and note pad and ask them to put it in writing. And I hold them to it afterwards, too!

No church needs members like those I have lost. If it weren't for the bad language, I'd tell them all to go to hell.

MISSOURI PASTOR
DEAR PASTOR: And if it weren't for your restraint, you'd be looking for a new pulpit.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, but I look much younger. My husband is 30, but he looks older. (He's losing his hair fast.) The problem is that everybody thinks I am his daughter, and this irritates us. In fact, we almost hate to go anywhere where people don't know us because everybody makes that mistake.

Have you any suggestions on how I can look older without dressing like an old lady?

LOOKS LIKE A KID

DEAR LOOKS: The solution to your problem could be to get your husband to look YOUNGER. Has he thought of a hairpiece? That would help. In the meantime, enjoy looking "like a kid." Too soon will come the day when time, the subtle thief of youth, will change all that.

Opening lead - four of spades.

Here is a remarkable hand played last year in the Grand Nationals by Piyush Vakil, Oakland, Calif., star. He made four hearts by playing the hand correctly — even though it seems that the contract should go down one with proper defense.

He started by ducking East's king of spades at trick one, then won the spade continuation with the ace.

Had Vakil fallen into the trap of leading a club or a trump at trick three, he would have gone down against perfectly normal defense. (Against a club lead, East would win dummy's queen with the ace, exit with a diamond, and later deny declarer a trump entry to dummy. Eventually, South would lose a spade trick to West to go down one. Against the king of hearts lead by South at trick three, East would play his seven and so prevent declarer from ever utilizing the club trick he could establish in dummy.)

Vakil avoided both traps by cashing the A-K of diamonds and playing a club at trick five. East won with the ace and returned a diamond, whereupon declarer ruffed and played a low trump to dummy's queen.

East took the ace but was stymied. A diamond return would allow declarer to discard his spade loser as he ruffed in dummy; a club return would permit South to discard a spade; and a trump return would make dummy's eight an entry and also allow South to discard his spade loser.

In effect, Vakil's method of play was designed to overcome the possibility of a 3-0 trump division — the only division that could place the contract in jeopardy. He recognized this possibility early in the play, took the necessary steps to overcome it, and fully earned the vulnerable game he scored.

GRAY TWEED . . . with overcheck; woman wears flannel, suede.

Gray Flannel Suit Back On Scène

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The man in the gray flannel suit is back on the fashion scene for men.

Designer Piero Dimitri, who will be in Lincoln Oct. 10 for the Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary benefit fashion production, said in a telephone interview that he is emphasizing gray in his fall '76 Couture Collection for men.

An Italian who came to America in the early 1960s, Dimitri is the only menswear designer to win the Coty Award for three consecutive years and the coveted "Hall of Fame" award by the American Fashion Critics.

He said there is a return to the natural fibers such as wool, cotton and linen, and wide use is again being made of basic grays, beiges and blacks in menswear.

While greens were popular for a few years, Dimitri said grays and beiges and a combination of the two head the fashion color list.

Stripes are "strong" with the "hound's tooth" look," he said, but leisure suits will not replace the dress suit for men in Dimitri's opinion.

He said the popular leisure suit can be "elegant" as a sportswear portion of the wardrobe, but "people are supposed to be dressed right all the way" and sportswear should not take the place of the more formal dress suit with the returning white shirt.

Dimitri, who says he prefers the white shirt, also said that light blue or very soft pastel shades for shirts are acceptable.

As for fur, Dimitri says he doesn't think fur belongs in a man's wardrobe — it's too feminine.

However, he, along with other designers, is making wide use of leather and suede; and for Dimitri, it's primarily antelope suede.

In his line, Dimitri features all wool gray tweed with a subtle camel overcheck in his "Burke" sports jacket.

The jacket with camel suede elbow patches is complemented with all wool gray flannel pants topped with a antelope suede vest.

Featuring multi-stripes of gray, Dimitri has in his collection a six-button double-breasted suit of flannel with a black flannel double-breasted "Chesterfield" topcoat which conjures up thoughts of a bygone era of elegance.

Dimitri's gray flannel suit takes on a sporty look with four-buttoned jacket with patch pockets highlighted by top-stitching. That touch of Dimitri-quilted suede is used in elbow patches; coat buttons are leather covered.

To complete the suit, Dimitri shows the palest of beige and tan tones in the shirt, tie and pocket scarf.

Dimitri, who has been at his craft since he was 13, was a full-fledged master tailor and designer at the age of 20. After his migration to the United States, he did a brief stint as a 7th Avenue cutter and designer for menswear with a top designer, but he was not satisfied and opened his own establishment.

He quickly gained prominence as an innovative designer and some of his clientele were named on the Best Dressed List. In 1972, he went into a full-scale wholesale production for exclusive men's and women's shops across the country.

Wear 'Moustaki Dress' 50 Ways

A soft, flowing feminine dress which can be worn 50 different ways will be featured at the Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary's annual fashion production Oct. 10 at Pershing Auditorium.

The creator of the famous "Moustaki Dress", Soli Moustaki, will be at the show in person to present the many metamorphoses of the jersey dress, which is made of one solid piece, cut slightly on the bias to the individual figure, and sewn with one seam and no zipper.

The Moustaki's transformations are incredibly made with a drape here, pin there, wrap of a cord, tug at a shoulder or disappearance of a sleeve.

With the exception of length adjustments, one size fits all figures and it comes in long or short versions in a variety of colors.

It lends itself to dressing up or down with belt, scarf or jewelry and travels like a dream.

Now a resident of Florida, Moustaki came to the United States in 1960 after giving up the first fashion house of Egypt which catered to practicality, softness of line and femininity.

He says it "distresses" him to see so many jeans — even at night — and notes he would like to see more formal wear.

"Costume is a great influence on behavior, I think. If you're dressed nice, you have good manners," he said.

Twelve Lincoln stores will display their fashion lines for men, women and children at the show which will feature a bicentennial theme, "Fashion Revolution."

According to Mrs. Charles Burmeister, general chairperson for the fashion show, all proceeds will be donated to the hospital for needed equipment, with the purchase of a new urology table heading this year's list.

NOTICE OF SALE OF $50,000,000

POWER SUPPLY DEVELOPMENT NOTES, 1975 SERIES OF NEBRASKA PUBLIC POWER DISTRICT

SEALED PROPOSALS for the purchase of $50,000,000 Power Supply Development Notes, 1975 Series (herein called the "Notes") of Nebraska Public Power District (herein called the "District") will be received by the Board of Directors of the District on Tuesday, October 7, 1975, at the office of the Controller of the District, 2001 Fifth Street, Columbus, Nebraska, until 10:00 o'clock A.M. (central daylight saving time). Such proposals may also be submitted, at the option of the bidder, at the office of Mudge, Ross Guthrie & Alexander, Bond Counsel to the District, 20th floor, 20 Broad Street, New York, N.Y., until 11:00 o'clock A.M. (eastern daylight saving time), on said date, for transmittal to the Board of Directors.

The Notes are to be issued pursuant to Chapter 70, Article 6, Revised Statutes of Nebraska (herein called the "Act"), and under and pursuant to the proposed Power Supply Development Note Resolution to be adopted by the District (herein called the "Resolution").

The Notes are being issued for the principal purpose of financing the initial cost of developing future power supply facilities to meet the power requirements of the District's retail and wholesale customers.

Such Notes will be dated and bear interest from October 15, 1975, and will mature on October 15 in the years and in the principal amounts shown below:

Year	Amount Maturing
1977	$15,000,000
1978	15,000,000
1979	20,000,000

The Notes will bear interest at the rate or rates specified in the proposal of the successful bidder in accordance with this Notice of Sale. Interest will be payable on April 15 and October 15 in each year.

Such Notes will not be redeemable prior to maturity.

For further information as to the Notes, including the District's covenants with respect thereto, reference is hereby made to the Resolution and to the form of Preliminary Official Statement mentioned in the closing paragraph of this Notice of Sale.

Each proposal must be on the Official Form of Proposal and must be a bid of not less than $49,500,000 nor more than $50,500,000 plus interest on the Notes according to the date of delivery, and must specify in a multiple of 1/100 of 1% the rate per annum of interest which the Notes of each maturity are to bear. Only one interest rate may be specified for the Notes of each maturity, and only one coupon will be attached to each Note for each interest payment.

Each proposal must be enclosed in a sealed envelope and should be addressed to the Board of Directors, Nebraska Public Power District, at other address specified in the first paragraph of this Notice of Sale, and marked on the outside, in substance, "Proposal for Notes". As a condition precedent to the consideration of his proposal, each bidder must enclose with it, as a good faith deposit, a certified or cashier's check drawn upon a bank or trust company in the City of New York or the State of Nebraska, payable to the order of "Nebraska Public Power District", for $500,000. No interest will be allowed on any good faith deposit.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals or any proposal not conforming to this Notice of Sale or not on the Official Form of Proposal (without alteration except for the insertions required by the form). The right is also reserved to waive, if permitted by law, any irregularity or informality in any proposal.

As between acceptable proposals complying with this Notice of Sale, the Notes will be sold to the highest responsible bidder whose proposal offers to purchase all the Notes at the lowest effective interest rate to the District. The lowest effective interest rate will be determined in accordance with the effective interest cost method of calculation by doubling the semi-annual interest rate (compounded semi-annually) necessary to discount the debt service payments from the payment dates to the date of the Notes and to the price bid, not including interest accrued to the date of delivery. It is requested that each proposal be accompanied by a statement of the effective interest rate for the Notes computed in respect to the Notice of Sale, but such statement is not to be considered a part of the proposal.

Proposals will be accepted or rejected by the Board of Directors of the District at a meeting called for that purpose at the office of the District Controller, Columbus, Nebraska, not later than 2:00 o'clock P.M. (central daylight saving time) (3:00 o'clock P.M. eastern daylight saving time), on the date of the meeting. When the successful bidder has been ascertained, the Board of Directors of the District will adopt a resolution regarding the purchase of the Notes and the President or other authorized officer of the District will promptly accept in writing the proposal of such bidder and will return all good faith deposits made by the persons making the same except the deposit made by the successful bidder. The deposit of the successful bidder will be applied as part payment for the Notes or, if he fails to comply with the terms of his proposal, will be returned as liquidated damages and in full satisfaction of any claims of the District against the successful bidder relating to the Notes, or if the District fails to fulfill the conditions stated in the proposal, the deposit will be returned.

As soon as possible after the successful bidder is ascertained, the District will modify the Preliminary Official Statement mentioned in the closing paragraph of this Notice of Sale so as to reflect the effect of the proposal of the successful bidder, and the document so modified will constitute the Official Statement. The District will then furnish the successful bidder with up to 100 copies, as required in connection with the sale by him of the Notes of such Official Statement, including one copy thereof signed manually by the President or other authorized officer of the District.

The successful bidder will also be furnished without cost with memoranda prepared by Mudge, Ross Guthrie & Alexander with respect to (1) the status of the Notes for sale under the securities or Blue Sky laws of various states, and (2) the legality of the Notes for investment by savings banks, trustees, life insurance companies and fire and casualty companies in various states.

The Notes will be delivered in definitive form as coupon Notes, registrable as to principal only, in the denomination of $5,000 with a single coupon attached for each installment of interest thereon. Such delivery will be made in the City of New York or at about October 22, 1975, at 9:00 o'clock A.M. (Eastern daylight saving time), or such other place, time and date as shall be acceptable to the District and the successful bidder, at which time the successful bidder shall pay the balance of the purchase price by one or more certified or cashier's checks or bank drafts drawn upon banks or trust companies in the City of New York, payable to the order of "Nebraska Public Power District".

It shall be a condition of the obligation of the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Notes that contemporaneously with or before accepting such Notes and paying therefor he shall receive copies in reasonable quantity as required in connection with delivery of the successful bidder of the Notes, of the opinion of Mudge, Ross Guthrie & Alexander, Bond Counsel to the District, substantially in the form referred to in the closing paragraph of this Notice of Sale and attached to the Official Form of Proposal, including one copy thereof signed manually.

Upon the delivery of the Notes, or as soon as practicable thereafter, the successful bidder will be furnished with a record of proceedings taken in connection with the issuance of such Notes.

Copies of the form of Preliminary Official Statement of the District relating to the Notes, the Resolution, this Notice of Sale, the Official Form of Proposal, the form of the opinion of Mudge, Ross Guthrie & Alexander, Bond Counsel to the District, and the preliminary Blue Sky and legal investment memoranda will be furnished upon application to the District, Columbus, Nebraska, or the Financial Consultants to the District, Smith, Barney & Co., Incorporated, 1345 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. or One First National Plaza, Chicago, Illinois.

GRAY TWEED . . . with overcheck; woman wears flannel, suede.

Gray Flannel Suit Back On Scene

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The man in the gray flannel suit is back on the fashion scene for men.

Designer Piero Dimitri, who will be in Lincoln Oct. 10 for the Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary benefit fashion production, said in a telephone interview that he is emphasizing gray in his fall '76 Couture Collection for men.

An Italian who came to America in the early 1960s, Dimitri is the only menswear designer to win the Coty Award for three consecutive years and the coveted "Hall of Fame" award by the American Fashion Critics.

He said there is a return to the natural fibers such as wool, cotton and linen; and wide use is again being made of basic grays, beiges and blacks in menswear.

While greens were popular for a few years, Dimitri said grays and beiges and a combination of the two head the fashion color list.

Stripes are "strong" along with the "hound's tooth look," he said, but leisure suits will not replace the dress suit for men in Dimitri's opinion.

He said the popular leisure suit can be "elegant" as a sportswear portion of the wardrobe, but "people are supposed to be dressed right all the way" and sportswear should not take the place of the more formal dress suit with the returning white shirt.

Dimitri, who says he prefers the white shirt, also said that light blue or very soft pastel shades for shirts are acceptable.

As for fur, Dimitri says he doesn't think fur belongs in a man's wardrobe — it's too feminine.

However, he, along with other designers, is making wide use of leather and suede; and for Dimitri, it's primarily antelope suede.

In his line, Dimitri features all wool gray tweed with a subtle camel overcheck in his "Burke" sports jacket.

The jacket with camel suede elbow patches is complemented with all wool gray flannel pants topped with a antelope suede vest.

Featuring multi-stripes of gray, Dimitri has in his collection a six-button double-breasted suit of flannel with a black flannel double-breasted "Chesterfield" topcoat which conjures up thoughts of a bygone era of elegance.

Dimitri's grey flannel suit takes on a sporty look with four-buttoned jacket with patch pockets highlighted by top-stitching. That touch of Dimitri-quilted suede is used in elbow patches; coat buttons are leather covered.

To complete the suit, Dimitri shows the palest of beige and tan tones in the shirt, tie and pocket scarf.

Dimitri, who has been at his craft since he was 13, was a full-fledged master tailor and designer at the age of 20. After his migration to the United States, he did a brief stint as a 7th Avenue cutter and designer for menswear with a top designer, but he was not satisfied and opened his own establishment.

He quickly gained prominence as an innovative designer and some of his clientele were named on the Best Dressed List. In 1972, he went into a full-scale wholesale production for exclusive men's and women's shops across the country.

Wear 'Moustaki Dress' 50 Ways

A soft, flowing feminine dress which can be worn 50 different ways will be featured at the Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary's annual fashion production Oct. 10 at Pershing Auditorium.

The creator of the famous "Moustaki Dress", Soli Moustaki, will be at the show in person to present the many metamorphoses of the jersey dress, which is made of one solid piece, cut slightly on the bias to the individual figure, and sewn with one seam and no zipper.

The Moustaki's transformations are incredibly made with a drape here, pin there, wrap of a cord, tug at a shoulder or disappearance of a sleeve.

With the exception of length adjustments, one size fits all figures and it comes in long or short versions in a variety of colors.

It lends itself to dressing up or down with belt, scarf or jewelry and travels like a dream.

Now a resident of Florida, Moustaki came to the United States in 1960 after giving up the first fashion house of Egypt which catered to practicality, softness of line and femininity.

He says it "distresses" him to see so many jeans — even at night — and notes he would like to see more formal wear.

"Costume is a great influence on behavior, I think. If you're dressed nice, you have good manners," he said.

Twelve Lincoln stores will display their fashion lines for men, women and children at the show which will feature a bicentennial theme, "Fashion Revolution."

According to Mrs. Charles Burmeister, general chairperson for the fashion show, all proceeds will be donated to the hospital for needed equipment, with the purchase of a new urology table heading this year's list.

Miami Scout Sawyers Mystified By Huskers

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's football team has mystified Miami scout Harold Sawyers.

"To be real truthful, I don't know how good Nebraska is," he admitted after the Huskers thrashed TCU, 56-14, Saturday at Memorial Stadium. "They really haven't beaten anybody. They beat LSU, 10-7 and then they (LSU) got beat bad by Texas A & M."

"Then I charted Indiana (which lost 45-0 to NU) and they don't have a good football team," he continued. "You really don't know how to evaluate them (NU)."

Sawyers, who has been at the Florida school 11 years under five head coaches, conceded that the Hurricanes' narrow 20-17 loss to top-rated Oklahoma Friday night at the Orange Bowl obviously will help Miami the rest of the season. Miami invades Lincoln to meet Nebraska Saturday in NU's fourth straight home contest.

Perfect Slate For Big Eight

By United Press International

Offhand, you'd have to say it was an eventful weekend for the Southwest Conference, the Big Eight, Archie Griffin and anyone who likes ties.

Cleaning up the traditional early season non-conference games, most of college football's top-rated teams escaped unscathed by defeat, but the inter-conference skirmishes proved especially gratifying to the SWC (which embarrassed a pair of Big Ten clubs) and the Big Eight which went 8-for-8 outside their league for the second straight weekend.

Perhaps the week's biggest upset belongs to Baylor, last year's SWC champion, which went up to Ann Arbor, Mich. as a 21-point underdog and held the 10th ranked Wolverines to their second tie in as many weeks, 14-14. Baylor and Michigan weren't alone in the tie department, however. Ninth-ranked UCLA also fell victim to the old "kissing your sister" act, getting locked up in a 20-20 deadlock with the Air Force in the mountains of Colorado.

While Baylor was giving Michigan a game, seventh-ranked Texas A&M, generally regarded as a co-favorite for the SWC title this year, was taking it out on another Big Ten entry, Illinois, 43-13. Sixth ranked Texas made it a clean sweep for the top three SWC powers by putting away Texas Tech 42-18.

The Big Eight, meanwhile, lived up to its "five teams in the top 20" billing, but the 8-for-8 didn't come so easily. For starters, top-ranked Oklahoma got the scare of its season in the Orange Bowl Friday night, holding off five-touchdown underdog Miami (Fla.) 20-17 and that one could cost the Sooners their No. 1 ranking.

No. 4 Nebraska breezed as expected, 56-14 over TCU, but fifth-ranked Missouri ran into trouble at home against Wisconsin before carving out a 27-21 win over the Big Ten Badgers. Other victorious Big Eight-ers were 13th-ranked Oklahoma State (61-7 over North Texas State), No. 17 Colorado (52-0 over Wichita State), Kansas (20-0 over Oregon State), Kansas State (17-16 over Wake Forest) and Iowa State (10-6 over Florida State).

With Oklahoma having so much trouble with Miami, and Michigan faltering for the second straight week, there was naturally a lot of good news for Ohio State. The second-ranked Buckeyes rolled over North Carolina 32-7 behind a school record five touchdowns from fullback Pete Johnson.

"That Johnson reminds me of a big tackle playing fullback," was N.C. coach Bill Dooley's resigned appraisal.

As for Griffin, well, it was an especially good weekend — home and away. Archie gained 157 yards, giving him 24 straight regular season 100-yard games, and in addition gained valuable ground in his bid to become a first-ever two-time Heisman Trophy winner. For while Griffin was having his typical game, his two closest Heisman rivals — Oklahoma's Joe Washington and Southern California's Ricky Bell — had off-days.

Third ranked Southern California held only a 7-0 lead over Purdue after three quarters but scored twice in the final period to gain a 19-6 win. The winless Boilermakers, however, proved tougher than expected as attested by the performance of Bell who, after gaining over 300 yards in each for his first two games, was held to 89.

Southern Cal quarterback Vince Evans carried the ball himself for two touchdowns and Trojans' safety Danny Reece returned four kicks for 150 yards.

In the week's one stunner — Michigan-Baylor — senior tailback Gordon Bell dove over from the one with 8:10 to play to rescue the 10th ranked Wolverines. Oddly enough, it was also the second straight tie for Baylor. "Two ties in a row," said a somewhat stunned Baylor coach Grant Teaff, "why I've never had that happen to me before. I've only had two ties in my whole career."

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler was more disgusted than surprised. "We were fortunate for the tie," he said. "Not like last week. Right now we're not a very good football team."

Ninth ranked UCLA, whose offense relies so heavily on what quarterback John Sciarra does, seemed to experience some ill effects from that high altitude of the Rockies and blew a 13-3 half-time lead in settling for its tie with Air Force. Sciarra was intercepted three times.

Elsewhere across the nation Saturday, 11th ranked Alabama continued its march back toward the top 10 by burying Vanderbilt, last of the Southeastern Conference unbeaten, 40-7. No. 19 Auburn, which was supposed to battle Alabama for the SEC title right down to their traditional season-end scrap, lost its second game in three outings, 21-17 to Tennessee. Two other top rated teams to fall were the two No. 20s, South Carolina—a 28-20 loser at home to Georgia, and Navy—defeated 14-13 at Washington.

Twelfth ranked Penn State overcame a sluggish start to put away Iowa 30-10, but the Nittany Lions may not have their customary easy road to Eastern supremacy this year. That is if we're to believe 14th ranked West Virginia, which looked awfully believable in routing Boston College 35-18 for its third straight one-sided win.

In other games, Arizona State, also in a tie for 14th, shut out Brigham Young 20-0, sixteenth ranked San Diego State ambushed Utah State 19-10.

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Roger Staubach's three-yard touchdown pass to tight end Billy Joe Dupree went 7.53 gone in sudden-death overtime Sunday gave the Dallas Cowboys a thrilling 37-31 National Football League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Staubach's clutch pass in the first regular-season overtime game this year was set up by linebacker Lee Roy Jordan's interception of a Jim Hart pass. Jordan lugged the ball 38 yards to the St. Louis 37-yard line, then Staubach completed passes of 12 and 11 yards to put the ball at the 13. Three running plays moved the ball to the three, then Staubach rolled out and found Dupree all alone in the left corner of the end zone.

Earlier, Staubach completed touchdown passes of one yard to Jean Fugett and 13 yards to

Miami 'Laughing' Ends As Husker Tilt Nears

By United Press International
They laughed when Miami of Florida set out to "win the Big Eight Conference championship" by tackling three of its powers on successive weekends. But nobody's laughing in Norman, Okla.

The Hurricanes, inexperienced but obviously unawed, nearly blew No. 1 ranked Oklahoma out of the unbeaten ranks Friday night. The Sooners survived with the help of some key defensive plays, 20-17, but were outtrashed and outpassed.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer had cautioned about Miami, a team that scared the Sooners two years ago and defeated Texas when it was ranked No. 1.

"I've been telling people all week not to take Miami lightly," he said. "Miami always plays great against the good teams."

"We just made too many mistakes," said Switzer, still undefeated as a head coach. "Every time it looked like we

"After our effort against Oklahoma our kids will play better," said Sawyers, who scouted OU in its 46-10 victory over Pittsburgh. "They know they can play with people. We out-scored OU 10-0 in the second half and had a chance to win it."

In comparing NU and OU, Sawyers termed the Sooner offensive speed as one advantage to coach Barry Switzer's defending national champions.

TCU's Ricky Wright loses a yard in the third quarter to the Husker two-yard-line with Wonder Monds, left, Ray Phillips, bottom and Dave Butterfield (34) making the stop as Nebraska held the Horned Frogs scoreless after four downs from the six.

Staubach Pass Boosts Dallas

Drew Pearson. Charles Young's one-yard plunge accounted for Dallas' only touchdown. Toni Fritsch kicked a 40-yard field goal for the Cowboys but he missed a 39-yard attempt that would have won it for them in regulation time.

Hart, meanwhile, hurried four touchdown passes—23 and 37 yards to Mel Gray, 80 yards to Earl Thomas and 35 yards to Jackie Smith—and Jim Bakken kicked a 28-yard field goal.

In other games it was Buffalo 30, Pittsburgh 21; Miami 22, New England 14; Minnesota 42, Cleveland 10; Washington 49, the New York Giants 13, Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 14; the New York Jets 30, Kansas City 24; Oakland 31, Baltimore 20; Chicago 15, Philadelphia 13, Houston 33; San Diego 17; Detroit 17, Atlanta 14, and Cincinnati 21, New Orleans 0.

O. J. Simpson rushed for 227 yards, including an 88-yard romp for a touchdown, to spark the Bulls past the Super Bowl champion Steelers.

Pittsburgh was camped at the Buffalo 12-yard line in the third quarter when Simpson bounced outside on third-and-one and easily won a sideline foot race to the end zone. It was the fourth 200-yard game of Simpson's career, tying Jim Brown's NFL record, and gave him 400 yards in two games.

The Dolphins spotted New England a 14-0 lead on two Neil Graft touchdown passes, then got its defense together and rode the running of Don Nottingham past the Patriots. Nottingham, held to 15 yards in the first half, broke loose in the final two periods to finish with 120 yards and a touchdown.

Fran Tarkenton passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in the Vikings' rout of

"OU has more speed where it counts — in the offensive backfield and with Tinker Owens, but I don't want to sell NU short," he explained. "When it comes time to play tough football, they'll be ready."

"When I scouted OU I thought they were one of the best teams I'd ever seen. I still think they're a super football team (despite the close triumph over Miami). It's tough for teams to play week after week and be at their best."

"I'm not taking anything away from our effort against them, but you're going to have some off weeks," he said.

Despite an 0-2 start (a 38-23 loss to Georgia Tech opened the Hurricanes' season), Miami is still confident of a successful season under head coach Carl Selmer. Miami won six of 11 games last season for its first winning season since 1967.

As an extra incentive, Selmer and defensive coordinator Jim Walden were assistants under former NU coach Bob Devaney. Selmer served 11 years under Devaney at Nebraska

Four A's Pitchers Throw No-Hitter

OAKLAND (UPI) — All four pitchers who made major league history in sharing the Oakland A's 5-0 no-hit victory over the California Angels here Sunday tended to shrug off the milestone.

Starting pitcher Vida Blue, who went the first five innings to pick up his 22nd victory and permitted the game's only baserunners on a pair of walks and a Bert Campaneris error said, "I knew I was coming out. It didn't matter to me at all. All I care about is my earned run average. I'll take my record of 22-11 and run."

Glenn Abbott, who relieved Blue in the sixth inning, as prescheduled by Manager Alvin Dark, said, "I thought maybe with a no-hitter going they'd let Vida stay in for one more inning. I never gave too much thought to a no-hitter at that stage of the game, but I didn't want to give up a hit and be a goat."

Then veteran southpaw reliever Paul Lindblad, as was scheduled, threw the seventh inning and suggested, "I was in the right spot at the right time. Funny thing is, I really didn't realize we had a no-hitter going. All I knew is we had three runs and if they scored four off me I'd get the loss."

According to Dark's pitching exercise scheduled, rookie Mike Norris was slated to pitch 1-3 of an inning in the eighth to give Rollie Fingers a chance to lower his ERA under the 3.00 mark with 1 2-3 innings of work. But with the no-hitter going, Dark changed his plans and brought in Fingers to start the eighth.

The veteran Oakland bullpen artist said, "I was a little nervous although the pressure was less than it is in a playoff or World Series game. The guys in the dugout were razzing me so much that I knew if I gave up a hit I'd hear about it all winter long."

Reggie Jackson drove in three of the Oakland runs with his 35th and 36th homers to end up in a tie with Milwaukee's George Scott for the American League championship in that department.

Oakland first baseman-outfielder Joe Rudi injured his left thumb while taking a swing in the third inning and was sent to Merritt Hospital here for x-rays. Rudi, sidelined for more than a month late this season with torn ligaments in the same thumb, is believed to have jammed the digit this time rather than aggravated the old injury, although there was no immediate report from the hospital.

While it was a glorious ending for the A's, who begin the AL playoffs next Saturday at Boston, it was a sad finale for managers Del Crandall of Milwaukee and Frank Quilici of Minnesota. Both were fired.

Reggie Jackson blasted two homers for the A's, his 35th and 36th of the season, tying Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL home run title.

Scott failed to connect as the Brewers beat Detroit 7-0, a short time after Crandall had been dismissed as manager. Quilici was fired after Minnesota dropped a 6-4, 10-inning decision to the Chicago White Sox.

In other AL finales, Cleveland blasted Boston 11-4, Baltimore defeated New York 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader with Jim Palmer tossing an eight-hitter for his 23rd victory before the Orioles lost the nightcap 3-2, and Texas topped Kansas City 3-1.

In the National League, Cincinnati won its 108th game, outslugging Atlanta 7-6. St. Louis whipped Pittsburgh 6-2. New York's Tom Seaver gained his 22nd victory as the Mets edged Philadelphia 5-4. Chicago trounced Montreal 9-6; San Francisco downed San Diego 5-3, and Houston beat Los Angeles 4-2.

Alan Ashby's grand-slam homer and Joe Lis' two-run shot topped Cleveland's power display against Boston. Palmer tied the Yankees' Catfish Hunter for the most victories in the majors. The Yanks won the nightcap with two runs in the ninth. Texas' Stan Perzanowski, with last-out relief from Steve Foucault, shackled Kansas City on nine hits.

Cincinnati overcame Atlanta on Cesar Geronimo's run-scoring single in the ninth inning. Reggie Smith drove in three runs as the Cards took advantage of seven Pittsburgh errors.

Saturday," Smock said. "I'm confident we'll do close to $300,000 on future Sundays."

"We had a lot of people here today (Sunday) that hadn't been to the races before. Some curiosity seekers and people that were just looking for something to do on Sunday. But we need more of this kind of thing in racing," he continued.

"These people may not be like the avid gambler who comes out here all the time, but it's working out just fine for us," he said.

That's exactly what has happened throughout the country. The Sunday per capita betting figure has been lower on Sundays than Saturdays as more "first-timers" watch the races. Atokad was able to conduct

Smock said he has received no formal complaints about holding horse races on Sunday, but related the following story.

"We had one lady tell one of my board members that since we had showers up here today, the good Lord was telling us he didn't want Sunday horse races. The member replied 'Lady, he's just helping us sprinkle our track.'"

Sunday Racing Helps Atokad

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Atokad Park has increased its mutual handle thanks mostly to the first Sunday horse racing card in Nebraska history.

Sunday's total mutual handle was $258,368, putting the total handle for the first five days of this year's Atokad meet $212,964 above last year's corresponding five-day period.

"Remember, you're comparing the Sunday figure with the fifth day last year which was a Tuesday," noted Atokad general manager Harold Smock. "Last year, we did about $137,000 so the $258,368 is like $120,000 better than the Tuesday."

"We're real pleased with our first Sunday," he added. "We're confident this thing will grow. It (Sunday racing) has only been approved a little over a week and we haven't yet had the blint of our advertisements."

Smock said several advertisements had to be changed since they had the wrong dates for this year's Atokad horse race meeting in South Sioux City.

Atokad will run eight Sundays this year and will have Friday-Saturday-Sunday racing during the second and third weekends in November.

As has been the case nationally, the Sunday figures were somewhat lower than Saturday's totals. Saturday's crowd of 3,578 wagered $263,596 while the Sunday figure of $258,368 was attained by 3,400 patrons.

"I'm really not disappointed that we were a little behind

Redman Wins Race

Long Beach, Calif. (AP)—Cool Brian Redman of England sewed up his second consecutive Formula 5000 championship Sunday when he won the Long Beach Grand Prix as big-time road racing made its first appearance on city streets in the United States in more than two decades.

Wagener Captures Double Victories

Malcolm-Jack Wagener won twice Sunday at the Lincoln Snipe Fleet races near here at Branched Oak Lake.

Larry Briggs and Bill Hidel followed Wagener in the first contest while Hidel and Miles Henderson trailed Wagener in the second event.

Seaver was kayoed in the sixth inning by the Phils, but Skip Lockwood pitched four perfect innings of relief. Cubs' pitcher Rick Reuschel of the Cubs helped his cause with a two-run single.

The Giants' Greg Minton gained his first major league victory, outdueling San Diego 20-game winner Randy Jones. Cliff Johnson's three-run homer climaxed a four-run Houston upsurge in the eighth inning that beat the Dodgers.

And that one could cost the Sooners their No. 1 ranking.

No. 4 Nebraska breezed as expected, 56-14 over TCU, but fifth-ranked Missouri ran into trouble at home against Wisconsin before carving out a 27-21 win over the Big Ten Badgers. Other victorious Big Eight-ers were 13th-ranked Oklahoma State (61-7 over North Texas State), No. 17 Colorado (52-0 over Wichita State), Kansas (20-0 over Oregon State), Kansas State (17-16 over Wake Forest) and Iowa State (10-6 over Florida State).

With Oklahoma having so much trouble with Miami, and Michigan faltering for the second straight week, there was naturally a lot of good news for Ohio State. The second-ranked Buckeyes rolled over North Carolina 32-7 behind a school record five touchdowns from fullback Pete Johnson.

"That Johnson reminds me of a big tackle playing fullback," was N.C. coach Bill Dooley's resigned appraisal.

As for Griffin, well, it was an especially good weekend — home and away. Archie gained 157 yards, giving him 24 straight regular season 100-yard games, and in addition gained valuable ground in his bid to become a first-ever two-time Heisman Trophy winner. For while Griffin was having his typical game, his two closest Heisman rivals — Oklahoma's Joe Washington and Southern California's Ricky Bell—had off-days.

Third ranked Southern California held only a 7-0 lead over Purdue after three quarters but scored twice in the final period to gain a 19-6 win. The winless Boilermakers, however, proved tougher than expected as attested by the performance of Bell who, after gaining over 200 yards in each for his first two games, was held to 89.

Southern Cal quarterback Vince Evans carried the ball himself for two touchdowns and Trojans' safety Danny Reece returned four kicks for 150 yards.

In the week's one stunner — Michigan-Baylor — senior tailback Gordon Bell dove over from the one with 8:10 to play to rescue the 10th ranked Wolverines. Oddly enough, it was also the second straight tie for Baylor. "Two ties in a row," said a somewhat stunned Baylor coach Grant Teaff, "why I've never had that happen to me before. I've only had two ties in my whole career."

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler was more disgusted than surprised. "We were fortunate for the tie," he said. "Not like last week. Right now we're not a very good football team."

Ninth ranked UCLA, whose offense relies so heavily on what quarterback John Sciarra does, seemed to experience some ill effects from that high altitude of the Rockies and blew a 13-3 half-time lead in settling for its tie with Air Force. Sciarra was intercepted three times.

Elsewhere across the nation Saturday, 11th ranked Alabama continued its march back toward the top 10 by burying Vanderbilt, last of the Southeastern Conference unbeaten, 40-7. No. 19 Auburn, which was supposed to battle Alabama for the SEC title right down to their traditional season-end scrap, lost its second game in three outings, 21-17 to Tennessee. Two other top rated teams to fall were the two No. 20s, South Carolina—a 28-20 loser at home to Georgia, and Navy—defeated 14-13 at Washington.

Twelfth ranked Penn State overcame a sluggish start to put away Iowa 30-10, but the Nittany Lions may not have their customary easy road to Eastern supremacy this year. That is if we're to believe 14th ranked West Virginia, which looked awfully believable in routing Boston College 35-18 for its third straight one-sided win.

In other games, Arizona State, also in a tie for 14th, shut out Brigham Young 20-0, sixteenth ranked San Diego State ambushed Utah State 19-10.

Staubach Pass Boosts Dallas

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Roger Staubach's three-yard touchdown pass to tight end Billy Joe Dupree with 7:53 gone in sudden-death overtime Sunday gave the Dallas Cowboys a thrilling 37-31 National Football League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Staubach's clutch pass in the first regular-season overtime game this year was set up by linebacker Lee Roy Jordan's interception of a Jim Hart pass. Jordan lugged the ball 38 yards to the St. Louis 37-yard line, then Staubach completed passes of 12 and 11 yards to put the ball at the 13. Three running plays moved the ball to the three, then Staubach rolled out and found Dupree all alone in the left corner of the end zone.

Earlier, Staubach completed touchdown passes of one yard to Jean Fugett and 13 yards to Drew Pearson. Charles Young's one-yard plunge accounted for Dallas' other touchdown. Toni Fritsch kicked a 40-yard field goal for the Cowboys but he missed a 39-yard attempt that would have won it for them in regulation time.

Hart, meanwhile, hurled four touchdown passes—23 and 37 yards to Mel Gray, 80 yards to Earl Thomas and 35 yards to Jackie Smith—and Jim Bakken kicked a 28-yard field goal.

In other games it was Buffalo 30, Pittsburgh 21; Miami 22, New England 14; Minnesota 42, Cleveland 10; Washington 49, the New York Giants 13, Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 14; the New York Jets 30, Kansas City 24; Oakland 31, Baltimore 20; Chicago 15, Philadelphia 13, Houston 33; San Diego 17; Detroit 17, Atlanta 14, and Cincinnati 21, New Orleans 0.

O. J. Simpson rushed for 227 yards, including an 88-yard romp for a touchdown, to spark the Bills past the Super Bowl champion Steelers.

Pittsburgh was camped at the Buffalo 12-yard line in the third quarter when Simpson bounced outside on third-and-one and easily won a sideline foot race to the end zone. It was the fourth 200-yard game of Simpson's career, tying Jim Brown's NFL record, and gave him 400 yards in two games.

The Dolphins spotted New England a 14-0 lead on two Neil Graft touchdown passes, then got its defense together and rode the running of Don Nottingham past the Patriots. Nottingham, held to 15 yards in the first half, broke loose in the final two periods to finish with 120 yards and a touchdown.

Fran Tarkenton passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in the Vikings' rout of Cleveland. Washington's defense sacked New York quarterbacks eight times while Billy Kilmer and Randy Johnson each threw two touchdown passes in the breeze over the Giants.

Tom Dempsey's 51-yard field goal in the fourth period put Los Angeles on top, then James Harris hit Lawrence McCutcheon on a 22-yard touchdown pass to seal the Rams' victory over San Francisco. John Riggins scored two touchdowns and Carl Garrett ran for one and each rushed for more than 100 yards in the Jets' victory over Kansas City.

Neal Colzie set up three touchdowns with punt returns to rally Oakland from behind, then he intercepted a fourthquarter pass that enabled the Raiders to hold off the Colts. Bob Thomas' 26-yard field goal with eight seconds remaining lifted the Bears past Philadelphia.

Dan Pastorini surprised San Diego with a four-yard touchdown pass to John Sawyer on fourth down and middle guard Curley Culp returned a fumble 38 yards for another score in the Oilers' victory. Albie Taylor's one-yard touchdown dive with 1:20 remaining enabled Detroit to down Atlanta.

Sunday Racing Helps Atokad

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Atokad Park has increased its mutual handle thanks mostly to the first Sunday horse racing card in Nebraska history.

Sunday's total mutual handle was $258,368, putting the total handle for the first five days of this year's Atokad meet $212,964 above last year's corresponding five-day period.

"Remember, you're comparing the Sunday figure with the fifth day last year which was a Tuesday," noted Atokad general manager Harold Smock.

"Last year, we did about $137,000 so the $258,368 is like $120,000 better than the Tuesday.

"We're real pleased with our first Sunday," he added. "We're confident this thing will grow. It

"OU has more speed where it counts — in the offensive backfield and with Tinker Owens, but I don't want to sell NU short," he explained. "When it comes time to play tough football, they'll be ready."

"When I scouted OU I thought they were one of the best teams I'd ever seen. I still think they're a super football team (despite the close triumph over Miami). It's tough for teams to play week after week and be at their best.

"I'm not taking anything away from our effort against them, but you're going to have some off weeks," he said.

Despite an 0-2 start (a 38-23 loss to Georgia Tech opened the Hurricanes' season), Miami is still confident of a successful season under head coach Carl Selmer. Miami won six of 11 games last season for its first winning season since 1967.

As an extra incentive, Selmer and defensive coordinator Jim Walden were assistants under former NU coach Bob Devaney. Selmer served 11 years under Devaney at Nebraska while Walden was at NU for four years.

Sawyers, however, noted that Selmer and Walden have downplayed their "return" to Nebraska.

"I think the kids at Nebraska might even be higher because of that," he said. "I don't think people can play that angle since there are probably 10 seniors at Nebraska Carl and Jim helped recruit.

"Neither Carl nor Jim have played that up very much, but deep down in their hearts they want to come back and see all the people they knew. Carl must know half the people in Lincoln after being here 11 years."

Nevertheless, Sawyers praised NU's squad. "They've got a good balanced offensive attack. It's well conceived with no glaring weaknesses. I'd really have to look at the films to find any weaknesses, but I really doubt if they have any.

Their (NU) own coach might have trouble finding out how good they really are. But I'll say this — our game here will be interesting," he added.

Four A's Pitchers Throw No-Hitter

OAKLAND (UPI) — All four pitchers who made major league history in sharing the Oakland A's 5-0 no-hit victory over the California Angels here Sunday tended to shrug off the milestone.

Starting pitcher Vida Blue, who went the first five innings to pick up his 22nd victory and permitted the game's only baserunners on a pair of walks and a Bert Campaneris error said, "I knew I was coming out. It didn't matter to me at all. All I care about is my earned run average. I'll take my record of 22-11 and run."

Glenn Abbott, who relieved Blue in the sixth inning, as prescheduled by Manager Alvin Dark, said, "I thought maybe with a no-hitter going they'd let Vida stay in for one more inning. I never gave too much thought to a no-hitter at that stage of the game, but I didn't want to give up a hit and be a goat."

Then veteran southpaw reliever Paul Lindblad, as was scheduled, threw the seventh inning and suggested, "I was in the right spot at the right time. Funny thing is, I really didn't realize we had a no-hitter going. All I knew is we had three runs and if they scored four off me I'd get the loss."

According to Dark's pitching exercise scheduled, rookie Mike Norris was slated to pitch 1-3 of an inning in the eighth to give Rollie Fingers a chance to lower his ERA under the 3.00 mark with 1 2-3 innings of work. But with the no-hitter going, Dark changed his plans and brought in Fingers to start the eighth.

The veteran Oakland bullpen artist said, "I was a little nervous although the pressure was less than it is in a playoff or World Series game. The guys in the dugout were razzing me so much that I knew if I gave up a hit I'd hear about it all winter long."

Reggie Jackson drove in three of the Oakland runs with his 35th and 36th homers to end up in a tie with Milwaukee's George Scott for the American League championship in that department.

Oakland first baseman-outfielder Joe Rudi injured his left thumb while taking a swing in the third inning and was sent to Merritt Hospital here for x-rays. Rudi, sidelined for more than a month late this season with torn ligaments in the same thumb, is believed to have jammed the digit this time rather than aggravated the old injury, although there was no immediate report from the hospital.

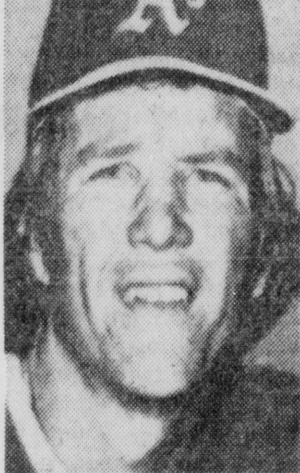

While it was a glorious ending for the A's, who begin the AL playoffs next Saturday at Boston, it was a sad finale for managers Del Crandall of Milwaukee and Frank Quilici of Minnesota. Both were fired.

Reggie Jackson blasted two homers for the A's, his 35th and 36th of the season, tying Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL home run title.

Scott failed to connect as the Brewers beat Detroit 7-0, a short time after Crandall had been dismissed as manager. Quilici was fired after Minnesota dropped a 6-4, 10-inning decision to the Chicago White Sox.

In other AL finales, Cleveland blasted Boston 11-4, Baltimore defeated New York 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader with Jim Palmer tossing an eight-hitter for his 23rd victory before the Orioles lost the nightcap 3-2, and Texas topped Kansas City 3-1.

In the National League, Cincinnati won its 108th game, out-slugging Atlanta 7-6; St. Louis whipped Pittsburgh 6-2; New York's Tom Seaver gained his 22nd victory as the Mets edged Philadelphia 5-4; Chicago trounced Montreal 9-6; San Francisco downed San Diego 5-3, and Houston beat Los Angeles 4-2.

Alan Ashby's grand-slam homer and Joe Lis' two-run shot topped Cleveland's power display against Boston. Palmer tied the Yankees' Catfish Hunter for the most victories in the majors. The Yanks won the nightcap with two runs in the ninth. Texas' Stan Perzanowski, with last-out relief from Steve Foucault, shackled Kansas City on nine hits.

Cincinnati overcame Atlanta on Cesar Geronimo's run-scoring single in the ninth inning. Reggie Smith drove in three runs as the Cards took advantage of seven Pittsburgh errors.

Seaver was kayoed in the sixth inning by the Phils, but Skip Lockwood pitched four perfect innings of relief. Cubs' pitcher Rick Reuschel of the Cubs helped his cause with a two-run single.

The Giants' Greg Minton gained his first major league victory, outdueling San Diego 20-game winner Randy Jones. Cliff Johnson's three-run homer climaxed a four-run Houston uprising in the eighth inning that beat the Dodgers.

Wagner Captures Double Victories

Malcolm—Jack Wagner won twice Sunday at the Lincoln Snipe Fleet races near here at Branched Oak Lake.

Larry Briggs and Bill Hidell followed Wagner in the first contest while Hidell and Miles Henderson trailed Wagner in the second event.

Redman Wins Race

Long Beach, Calif. (AP)—Cool Brian Redman of England sewed up his second consecutive Formula 5000 championship Sunday when he won the Long Beach Grand Prix as big-time road racing made its first appearance on city streets in the United States in more than two decades.

Sunday racing after Dakota County voters approved the issue in a special election on Sept. 16. The Unicameral passed in the last session a bill allowing all counties with a population of less than 20,000 to hold an election to determine if they desire Sunday horse racing.

Atokad is the only Nebraska track qualifying under that condition.

Smock said he has received no formal complaints about holding horse races on Sunday, but related the following story.

"We had one lady tell one of my board members that since we had showers up here today, the good Lord was telling us he didn't want Sunday horse races. The member replied 'Lady, he's just helping us sprinkle our track.'"

"These people may not be like the avid gambler who comes out here all the time, but it's working out just fine for us," he said.

That's exactly what has happened throughout the country. The Sunday per capita betting figure has been lower on Sundays than Saturdays as more "first-timers" watch the races.

Atokad was able to conduct

Ag Leader For Hike In Support

Washington (UPI) — The United States already has a milk shortage, and consumers will face a "nutritional disaster" unless Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz moves swiftly to raise dairy price supports by some 12 cents a gallon, a farm leader charged Sunday.

Tony Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, urged Butz in a letter to raise the government support price for manufacturing grade milk to the legal ceiling of 90% of the "fair earning power" parity price.

Milk production this year is estimated at about 115 billion pounds, the lowest since 1952, and this shortage is being masked temporarily by a drop in demand caused by heavy unemployment, he said.

Dechant said that in past years, declines in milk production had been absorbed by cutting use of milk for livestock and poultry feed and in foreign aid. Now, he said, virtually no more savings can be made that way.

"But the 40-year downward trend in numbers of dairy farmers and dairy cows goes on, rushing us swiftly down the track toward nutritional disaster," Dechant said.

When general economic conditions improve, he predicted, milk production will drop even further as distressed dairymen turn to more profitable jobs at the same time consumer demand for milk increases.

Manufacturing milk is used to make butter, cheese, and other processed products and brings lower prices than milk sold in fluid form. Under the complex pricing system used in the dairy industry, however, hikes in manufacturing milk prices can also lead to higher bottling milk prices.

The current government support for manufacturing milk, in effect since the beginning of the 1975-76 dairy marketing year last April 1, is $7.24 per hundredweight, which is below current market prices. Under Dechant's proposal, the support floor would rise to $8.60 a hundredweight, an increase equal to about 6 cents per half-gallon in the support.

Dechant's proposal was submitted as part of a formal Agriculture Department proceeding in which Butz is considering whether to use his administrative powers to raise dairy supports midway through the marketing year which began last April 1.

Members of Congress, meanwhile, fearing that Butz will refuse to act, are preparing new legislation to force his hand.

A bill requiring quarterly adjustments in dairy supports to keep pace with increases in farm production costs has cleared the Senate Agriculture Committee and may reach a Senate vote this week.

Identical legislation is scheduled for consideration by a House agriculture subcommittee.

Floodwaters Receding Along Atlantic Seaboard

By The Associated Press

With the sun shining brilliantly and rivers and streams receding, the cleanup began Sunday throughout the Northeast after hurricane-spawned flooding that left at least 10 dead and drove thousands from their homes from Virginia to New England.

Twenty thousand people started returning to homes in Pennsylvania, hardest hit of a dozen states inundated by the torrential rains generated by tropical storm Eloise, the remnant of a hurricane.

"I want to cry, but I don't have the time," said Bob Morgan of Muncy, Pa. He was having trouble lifting the furniture he had removed back into his house because his front porch had been washed away.

An 11-mile section of the New York State Thruway, closed by the flooding, was reopened Sunday. National Guardsmen continued to patrol in Harrisburg, Pa., where water from the Susquehanna River had lapped at the front door of the sand-bagged governor's mansion.

In Connecticut, the search continued for the body of 14-year-old Daniel Byrnes, swept from a raft in the rain-swollen Steele Brooke in Watertown and presumed drowned.

There was one confirmed death in Connecticut from the flooding. Six died in Pennsylvania, two in New York and one in Virginia. Thomas V. Cushman, 27, of Charlottesville, Va., died when his car careened into a 40-foot hole on U.S. Highway 29 created by the heavy rains.

The U.S. Geological Service rated it a 60-year flood, the kind that can be expected, statistically, once in 60 years. The floods produced by tropical storm Agnes in 1972 had a 200-year rating.

Officials on Sunday started totaling the damages expected to run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Repair of roads alone in Steuben County, N.Y., will cost at least $2 million, officials said. Damages to homes, apartments and businesses in Alexandria, Va., were estimated at $9.9 million and one elementary school was closed indefinitely. State officials in Pennsylvania said damage to roads and crops alone would probably total $100 million.

All or parts of 21 Pennsylvania counties were declared eligible for federal disaster relief by President Ford after the Susquehanna River poured into the state's agricultural and industrial heartland.

Although the river was still high Sunday, it had dropped as much as 15 feet in some places and was below the flood stage at most measuring points along the river.

Only at Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg was the Susquehanna still above flood stage, according to the River Forecasting Office of the National Weather Service. It was expected to fall below the flood stage at both points Monday.

In Alexandria, Va., 19-year-old Jeff Klinko and his wife, Terry, looked at the soggy wreckage of their ground floor apartment.

"My wedding dress will never be the same," said Mrs. Klinko, holding up the mud-coated, floor-length gown.

Klinko said their television, stereo, clothes and car are now worthless.

Hunt Ordered To Drug, Not Murder, Columnist

NEW YORK (AP) — Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt says he was never ordered to assassinate columnist Jack Anderson — only to drug him, according to Time magazine.

Hunt says he was ordered by then White House counsel Charles Colson to administer a drug to Anderson before one of his live radio appearances and "cause him to ramble incoherently," the magazine says in its current issue. Colson hotly denied ever hearing of such a plan, Time said.

Time said its correspondent, David Beckwith, interviewed Hunt in the Eglin Air Force Base prison camp in Florida after reports that the Nixon administration had put a murder contract on Anderson.

Hunt denied there was an assassination plot, but said Colson proposed the drugging as a means of discrediting Anderson, whose reporting of inside information had angered the White House.

Hunt said he and another Watergate conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, set up a luncheon meeting with a former CIA physician and discussed with him ways of drugging Anderson, the magazine said.

One plan was to spread a drug on the steering wheel of Anderson's car. The drug would enter the body through the skin but the plan was discarded as too chancy. Another, to slip a hallucinogen into a regular medicine bottle used by Anderson, also was turned down because there was no way of knowing when he would take the pill.

The final scheme, to slip something into Anderson's drink at a cocktail party, also fell by the wayside. Hunt remembered that Anderson is a teetotaler.

"It was just another wild idea that never got beyond the proposal stage," Time quoted Hunt as saying.

Many May Claim Candidate's Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be a long line at the cashier's window when the government starts subsidizing presidential campaigns in January. Candidates who get there late could find the money running short.

The Federal Election Commission estimates that there will be about $95 million available for campaign payments during 1976, although about one-third of that is expected to come in from tax returns that won't be due until next April 15.

By then, seven states will have held their presidential primary elections, and the campaign for White House nomination will be in its most hectic — and expensive — phase.

At the moment, the Treasury's presidential campaign fund stands at $62,016,527, produced over the past three years by the optional, dollar-a-taxpayer checkoff system.

The law entitles every qualified presidential candidate to as much as $5 million in federal matching funds to help finance his bid for his party's nomination.

"Whether there's enough money depends on how many candidates qualify," an election commission official said. The government can pay out no more than the total sum earmarked by taxpayers who check off the campaign contribution box on their income tax returns.

Furthermore, more than $44 million will have to be set aside for those items that have first claim on the fund: $2 million each for the Democratic and Republican national conventions, and $20 million for each of the campaigns of the presidential nominees they select.

The whole process begins Jan. 1, 1976. Federal Election Commission auditors are at work now, trying to determine which candidates are entitled to the government matching funds.

According to current government estimates, once cost-of-living increases are calculated, there probably will be $45 million to $47 million available for payments to presidential primary candidates, assuming that the taxpayers match or increase the $31.8 million they earmarked for the campaign fund on income tax returns filed this year.

Any candidate who raises $5,000 in contributions of $250 or less in each of 20 states is entitled to the aid to match later donations.

Among Democrats who say they have qualified for the aid are announced candidates Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who has not announced his candidacy formally yet.

Four other Democrats, former Sen. Fred R. Harris, Sargent Shriver, former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, are declared presidential candidates. Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana is likely to enter the race soon.

On the GOP side, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, is expected to announce in November that he will run against President Ford.

Under the law a qualified presidential candidate gets $250 in matching funds for every $250 contribution he receives.

The Treasury must seek to distribute campaign matching funds equitably and, in case of a shortage, take into account the sequence in which candidates are certified as eligible for the aid.

So if there is a shortage, the first candidates to qualify would have the best chance of getting their full shares.
